ENGLAND FIRM.

She Considers Turkish Intervention a Subterfuge.

The Thunderer's Remark—Murders of Christians Continue.

Situation at Port Said—Arabi's Proclamation—The Egyptian War—Foreign Affairs.

ALEXANDRIA, July 31.—The two armed parties that went out to repair the railway cut by the rebels on the Alexandria side of Mahalla Junction have returned. They succeeded in their undertaking in every particular, and brought a considerable number of railway wagons to Alexandria. The enemy was not encountered. The rebels are making efforts to fortify in the vicinity of Port Said. The railway repairs were necessary in order to advance on Arabi Pasha's position and to transfer rolling stock from Gabari to the Ramleh line, as the junction of these lines lies beyond the point at which the rails had been removed.

On the authority of the Austrian Consu it is stated that De Lesseps addressed a crowd of Arabi's supporters at Port Said, and spoke in hostile terms of England and France, saying that they were strangers on Egyptian soil, and that if they did not molest the Suez Canal neither Italy nor France would touch them.

The Khedive's Ministers have issued an official proclamation denouncing Arabi Pasha as a rebel. Arabi Pasha has had the proclamation read and he has assumed the green turban and robes of a descendent of the prophet.

The Bank of Egypt, the Ottoman Bank and Credit Lyonnaise have reopened.

The looting of houses at Ramieh continues right under the eyes of the British. Osman Pasha is eager to head an attack against Arabi—he will reorganize a body of Circassian and Albanian troops.

The French men-of-war are ordered to ort Said and will cease traversing the Suez nal.

THE PORTE.

STANTINOPLE, July 31.—The Sultan ven no satisfactory answer, but has sent , messages through the Secretary, say-g he would only yield to the wishes of urope.

Dervich Pasha is the probable commander of the Egyptian expedition.

ITALY.

ROME, July 31.—The Minister of Foreign Affairs has said that in view of the resolution of the Porte to send an expedition to Egypt he did not consider himself in a position to intervene except at sittings of the conference.

THE CANAL.

MADRID, July 31.—The Imperial says: Germany has proposed to Spain to co-operate in the protection of the Suez Canal, and we believe the Government will accept the invitation.

THE SCOTS GRAYS.

LONDON, July 31.—The Scots Grays, 750 strong, embarked this morning on the Orient for Egypt. The Prince of Wales desired to accompany them, but, in deference to the wishes of the Queen, abandoned the project.

ARABI'S FAMILY.

ALEXANDRIA, July 31.—Arabi Pasha's whole family is located in a village a few miles from Ismailia.

THE LION ROARS.

LONDON, July 31.—The Times says: "We have ample reason for believing the expedition the Porte is now determined to send to Egypt has no other object than to thwart and pose the efforts England is now making to ore order there. Co-operation might be accepted if the Turks should send a moderate contingent to act under the orders of the British commanders. The obvious design of Turkey is to exclude England altogether and to maintain we have no right in Egypt. It is, therefore, mere trifling to continue negotiations for the purpose of getting such worthless pledges of good faith as a proclamation against Arabi Pasha. It is for the British Cabinet to show it appreciates the gravity of the situation, and to devise measures for guarding the national interests, and for a vindication of national honor, both of which are in serious jeopardy."

A MISSING MIDSHIPMAN.

ALEXANDRIA, July 31.—Midshipman De Chair, of the ironclad Alexandra, who was sent to Ramleh on Saturday morning, with a message, has not since been heard of.

REQUISITIONS.

ALEXANDRIA, July 31.—Six mudirs of Upper Egypt have been ordered to supply 500 horses and 650 camels to the force of Arabi Pasha.

MURDERS.

Murders are constantly occurring in the railway trains. The mob search every train for Christians.

ABOUKIR.

ALEXANDRIA, July 31.—An unconfirmed report prevails that the garrison of Aboukir has surrendered to the British.

ARABI'S MANIFESTO.

A traveler just arrived from Sioutt reports that Arabi Pasha has issued a manifesto declaring that Khedive Tewfik had sold Egypt to the British and retired to England. Arabi therefore ordered the people to obey him until the prophet enlightened him to find a worthier Khedive.

AT PORT SAID.

ALEXANDRIA, July 31—The commander of the German gunboat Moewe, at Port Said, has been instructed on no account to land troops, but if necessary to take German subjects aboard his vessel. Detachments landed at Ismailia from the English and French men-of-war. The German Consul-General will depart on leave of absence to-morrow. There now remain only French, Italian and JUDGE LYNCH.

A Negro Hanged by a Mob at Ironton for Outrage.

IRONTON, MO., July 31.—The prediction that Henry Caldwell, the negro who, on the 27th, attempted to outrage Mrs. Peck, an aged white lady, would be turned over to Judge Lynch, was verified on Saturday night. Shortly after midnight a party of about 100 masked men surrounded the jail and demanded of Sheriff Fletcher that Caldwell be turned over to them at once. The Sheriff resisted, but the maskers were determined and broke down the jail door. The prisoner was taken out and carried to a bridge on the Iron Mountain Railroad and hanged. To insure his death the mob fired several shots into his dangling body. The hanging was done very quietly, and after it was certain the man was dead the mob dispersed as quietly as they had come. The body of the negro was found by a farmer passing by at 3 o'clock on Sunday morning. It was cut down by Marshal Patton, put into a coffin and conveyed to the court-house, where it lay and was viewed by hundreds of the curious. He was buried by the town authorities on Sunday afternoon. The hanging of Caldwell was the first hanging that ever took place in Iron county.

ST. LOUIS, July 31, 1882.

O. L. Garrison, Esq., Secretary St. Louis Ore and Steel Co.:

DEAR SIR—In reading my testimony as published in some of the papers in the case of Peck vs. Chouteau, I find that I have done you a great injustice, for which I desire to make all the reparation in my power.

The objectionable statement, and which I subsequently corrected, escaped me under the impulse of the moment, and was not warranted by any fact within my knowledge. I therefore, in this public manner, desire to retract and apologize for the unintentional injury I have done you. Yours truly,

FURIOUS FLAMES.

Mill and Tenement Houses Burnt in New York.

Two Firemen Killed—Four Workmen Burned—A Rapid Fire—Loss Half a Million.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The extensive flour mills of Hecker & Co., to 265 Cherry street, burned this morning. Five hundred men employed in the building ran for their lives, and it is believed all escaped. The flames spread with such alarming rapidity, that there may have some lives lost.

The Express says, on what floor the flames started and how the began cannot at present be ascertained. The immense building was soon a mass of flame that rose a distance of 100 feet above the roof. The heat is intense. People dwelling in the tenement houses across the street were obliged leaving all their household effects behind. The unfortunate occupants deserted their houses none too soon for the flames shot to the opposite side of Cherry staeet, and in less time that it takes to write the conflagration had wrapped at least fifteen houses in flames extending from 194 up Pike street and continuing for several houses beyond the thoroughfares. While the flames were burning with terrific fury at the flour mill, the wall fell in,

TO FLY FOR THEIR LIVES,

KILLING TWO FIREMEN.

At the same time it became known that four of the factory hands had perished in the flames. It was currently reported at the same time that a number of those residing in the tenement houses across the street were unable to escape and were among the dead.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The spice and flour mills of Sawyer, Beers and Fisher also burned. There is as yet no verification of the report that six lives were lost. One fireman was seriously hurt, and two others overcome by the heat.

As far as could be ascertained the total loss by fire

WILL BE OVER $1,000,000, and possibly much more. Geo. V. Hecker, owner of the flour-mill, said the stock and machinery there was valued at about $400,000. The buildings themselves were valued at $200,000, and all were totally destroyed. The stables were damaged to the extent of $10,000. He said further, insurance would probably cover their losses.

POLITICAL.

Illinois Politics.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., July 31.—The Republicans of this State are becoming alarmed at the situation. Within the past ten days Prohibition nominations have become very numerous in districts where the Republicans usually elect the State Senator and two of the Representatives. This has attracted the attention of the State Central Committee, and Dan Shepard, its Secretary, arrived here yesterday to see if some counter movement can not be inaugurated. He stated that this scheme, as worked in Republican districts, is put forth on the ground that a large number of Democrats will vote for Prohibition candidates this year, whereas the fact is, as he alleges, that in all Central and Northern Illinois, not more than 1,000 or 1,500 Democrats can, under any circumstances, be counted on to support such candidates. He is understood to believe the case is different in Southern Illinois, where, by nominating a few men of temperance principle in Democratic districts, a member may be gained in some cases. He says he has information of a reliable nature that a good inroad can be made on the Democrats in that quarter by such a policy. It is at least becoming evident that in the more northern parts of the State the temperance fanatics are bound to cripple the Republicans badly.

The Democratic State Convention will take advantage of this tendency of State politics. Their plans for that occasion are already pretty well matured. The first thing of importance will be to declare in favor of Carter H. Harrison, Mayor of Chicago, for U. S. Senator and to issue a square utterance in opposition to sumptuary legislation. Harrison's known position on the question will help the Democratic vote, and the prohibition candidatures throughout the state will hurt the Republicans. Harrison has heretofore carried Chicago twice by very decided majorities and they expect upon his prestige to gain several members of the legislature in Cook county. Thus when the whole subject is figured down, the Republicans do not feel that the next legislature, and, consequently, David Davis' successor, is at all certain for them.

The danger of losing two members of Congress also stares them in the face. The latest information from the Twentieth District indicates that the Republicans are hopelessly divided upon Congressman Thomas. A gentleman from that district said yesterday that at least two of Thomas' opponents in the nominating convention expressed gratification at their own defeat on account of their firm conviction that under existing circumstances no Republican can be elected in that district. It is all they can do, when they are harmonious to carry it.

The next trouble is in the Fourteenth, the Bloomington, district. This is the temperance question again, of which D. H. Harts, of Lincoln, is the Congressional champion. The Republican nominee is Capt. Rowell, of Bloomington, a law partner of Lieut.-Gov. Hamilton, and the latter is said to fear the Captain will be slaughtered.

Taken all in all, there is more need for Illinois Republicans to discuss their chances for carrying the Legislature and for holding their ground in Congress than there is for busying themselves in deciding who they will send to the United States Senate. The question is: Will they be able to send anybody?

Star Route Trial.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 31.—Ex-Senator Mitchell, of Oregon, appeared as witness for the defense in the Star Route trial to-day. He testified he had frequent conversations with Brady concerning the extension of the mail service in Oregon. In many instances he had presented petitions to Brady and had indorsed and urged them on. He would do the same thing again under similar circumstances. He never recommended an increase or expedition, except upon request of his constituents. The signers of the petitions were highly respectable citizens. Upon cross-examination witness said the expense of the increase never entered into his mind when he recommended it. He only took care of his own region. He had nothing to do with contractors.

Representative Valentine, of Nebraska, testified he had called almost daily for some time upon Brady in connection with the increase of mail facilities in his section. He understood his people wanted fast and frequent mails. He did not always obtain the increase sought for, being met with the objection that the receipts were too small.

Secretary Teller was the next witness. While in the Senate he had very frequently called upon Gen. Brady in connection with mail service in his State. He had a general theory as to the duty of the Government where Western mail routes were concerned. He had often expressed a belief, both in the Senate and to Gen. Brady, that, in his opinion, every town and mining town in the West should have mail facilities equal to the towns in New York. There was no more reason for expecting such service to be self-sustaining than for the expectation that the army and navy should be self-sustaining. His own business with the department had almost invariably been done through Gen. Brady. He had been usually successful in securing such improvements as he desired. His people had pressed him to secure these increases and he believed he was only doing his duty in trying to obtain them. Mining camps in his State frequently grew into large towns in a few months. He had represented to the Second Assistant Postmaster-General that good and frequent mail service would tend to settle the Indian question. After calling without success for Representatives Page and Belford, the defense called Dr. D. H. Peterson, of Louisiana.

A LOST LOVE.

The Manner in Which Illinois Young Ladies Treat Their Fiances.

A singular crime is reported from near Nauvoo, Ill., by Frank Lehman, a traveler for the Babbit Soap Company. A school teacher living near Nauvoo, named Hickman, fell violently in love with one of his pupils, a girl named Mary Jamieson. The two were engaged to be married, and as the girl's family was very poor he advanced his sweetheart the money necessary to purchase her bridal outfit. They were to have been married on Tuesday last, but on Sunday night Hickman's house was entered by supposed burglars, he himself was severely beaten about the head, his trunk ransacked and over $300 in money stolen from it—all the cash which Hickman possessed. The next day the Jamieson girl was missing, as was a worthless fellow named Burt, and gossip connected the two disappearances at once. On Thursday evening Mary Jamieson came home and confessed that she had assisted Burt to rob her lover's house and had then fled with him down the river. He treated her so badly, however, that she had made up her mind to leave him and come home. Her family refused to receive her on her return. She had been living with her uncle, and after spending the night with a neighbor she left for Chicago, where she has friends. Mr. Hickman not only declined to prosecute his lost sweetheart, but furnished her money wherewith to go to Chicago, as her companion left her entirely destitute. If Burt is caught, however, he will be treated with very little mercy, as the people in the settlement where the crime was committed are very bitter against him.

ABOUT 12 o'clock this morning a fire was started in the rear of 903 North Seventh street, occupied by Cassilly, the photographer, by the explosion of an oil lamp. The flames were not extinguished before a loss of about $500 was sustained. The rear portion of the building was totally destroyed.

GUY SMITH.

A Talk With the Convicted Boy Parricide in His Cell.

How He Charges for Interviews—A Motion Made for a New Trial.

Contrary to general expectation the jury in the case of Guy Smith, the boy parricide of St. Louis county, found the youthful murderer guilty of murder in the first degree. The verdict as has been stated, was a surprise to everyone, and to none more so than to Prosecuting Attorney Warfield. The defendant at first did not realize the full meaning of the jury's finding, but when its dreadful sequel was explained to him he broke down completely. He was returned to the County Jail, in the rear of the Clayton Court-house, and went into his cell crying bitterly. This mood passed away with the night, however, and since yesterday morning he has been as cheerful as boys of his years usually are under happier circumstances. He appears to enjoy the prominence which his fearful crime has given him, and is turning the curiosity of visitors to the jail to his own pecuniary benefit. His cell is located at the rear of the jail, in a foul-smelling corner, near the sink, and Guy insists that every one of his callers shall present themselves immediately in front of the cell door. This morning a POST-DISPATCH reporter called at the jail for the purpose of having a talk with Guy. A number of farmers were in the jail and were holding an animated conversation with the boy, the burden of which was that the farmers owed Guy seventy-five cents.

"Didn't we give you them cigars?" asked one of the farmers.

"Yes, you did, but I want money," said Guy.

The upshot of the matter was that the farmers gave the boy a quarter and went their way. As soon as they had left the Jail the reporter and a friend entered.

"Some visitors to see you, Guy," said Silas, the colored guard.

"Well, I won't come out unless I get a quarter," said Guy, who had hidden himself under the bunk in his cell.

"O, I'll give you a quarter," said the visitor, and the reporter advanced to the bars in front of the cell.

"Come, on Guy; here's your quarter."

"I want fifty cents now," said the prisoner.

"Well, I can't give you any money as long as you stay under that bunk."

"Well, promise that you'll give me fifty cents," persisted Guy.

"All right, I promise."

This brought Guy to the bars. He looks bright and happy and is full of talk.

"Give me fifty cents first," he said.

"Well, here's a quarter, and as soon as I have done talking with you I'll give you the other quarter."

The boy grabbed the quarter and once more disappeared in his cell.

"Come, Guy, I want to talk to you."

"No, I won't come; you said you'd give me fifty cents, and I only got a quarter."

"Well, come on out and I'll give you the other quarter."

"I'll come if you'll give me the quarter and some coppers."

"Come on, here's your quarter and your coppers."

"How many coppers are there?"

"Three."

"All right, throw the money inside and I'll come out."

His demand was complied with and then Guy came again to the bars. He was quite willing to talk. In answer to questions he said he was feeling well. The reason why he made his visitors pay for the privilege of talking with him was that the prison fare was bad. "The white bread and the brown bread are underdone, and the beef poor," he complained. Since yesterday he has collected over four dollars besides a number of cigars, which he freely dispenses to his adult fellow prisoners.

"Guy, how long do you expect to stay here?" asked the reporter.

"Until December. Mr. Mitchell says my new trial will come off then."

"Do you think you'll get off?"

"Mr. Mitchell thinks so."

"But Mr. Mitchell thought he would get you off on Saturday."

"Well, he was mistaken."

"Suppose he should be mistaken about the new trial?" suggested the visitor.

"I don't know what would happen then."

"Do you recognize the fearful crime of which you have been guilty?"

"Yes, sir," he said, hiding his face.

"Do you expect to hang?"

"No, sir. My lawyer doesn't think I will, and so I don't, either."

As the reporter was leaving the jail a number of boys of his own age were applying for permission to see Guy, who used to be a playfellow of theirs. These boys say that Guy was a good-natured little fellow, with nothing remarkable about him.

THE CASE IN COURT.

This morning Smith's attorneys filed a motion for a new trial. The motion is in the following language:

STATE OF MISSOURI, } ss.
County of St. Louis.

The State of Missouri vs. Guy S. Smith. In the Circuit Court of St. Louis county, May term, 1882.

Now comes defendant in above entitled cause and moves the court to set aside the verdict of the jury as therein returned, and to grant defendant a new trial therein for reasons as follows:

First. Because the court erred in admitting for the consideration of said jury illegal and hearsay testimony as against defendant.

Second. Because the court misdirected the jury in material matters of law.

Third. Because the court failed to direct the jury in material matters of law, to-wit: As to the law defining the crime of murder in the second degree, manslaughter in the second degree and manslaughter in the third degree, as, by the evidence adduced in the case, it was bound to do.

Fourth. Because the court erred in participating in, and continuing the cross-examination of defendant after counsel for the State had closed his cross-examination of said defendant, whereby statements were elicited from defendant against defendant's interest, and upon which evidence alone thus wrongfully adduced the law as given by the court was based, and but for which evidence wrongfully extracted from the defendant by the court the instruction of law as given by the court could not have been given, but the case must have been submitted to said jury upon other and proper instructions of law.

Fifth. Because the court allowed counsel for the State in his closing argument of the case to misconstrue the law of the case as given by the court, and to assert and discuss the erroneous proposition of law that the province of the jury was to look to future disposition of defendant, if acquitted, and to discuss matters as facts which were not in or warranted by the evidence in the case, whereby the minds of the jury were prejudiced against defendant, and the jury was misled and induced to return a wrong verdict therein, as against defendant.

Sixth. Because the verdict of the jury in said case is contrary to the law as given and the evidence as adduced in said trial.

Seventh. Because the verdict of the jury upon the law as given and evidence adduced should here been in favor of defendant.

MITCHELL & HAWKEN,
Attorneys for defendant.

It was thought that the motion would be argued this morning, but Judge Edwards and Prosecuting Attorney Warfield were occupied with the case of John O'Hare, on trial for assault to kill. The argument was therefore laid over until it may be reached in the regular course of the court's business. It is possible that it may be argued late this afternoon. This is hardly probable, however. Messrs. Mitchell and Hawken, who are Smith's attorneys, express their confidence in ultimately bringing the case of their client to a favorable conclusion, but this confidence is not shared by many outsiders.

John Keety, for trespassing, was fined $550 and went with the first-named John to the rocks.

John Kotschenreuther is not unknown to fame, being under indictment for an attempted rape upon the person of the Ibers girl, 14 years of age. He is, or rather was, out on bail and sought to improve the time by going to the Ibers residence and flourishing a revolver with the intention of persuading the parents to dismiss the prosecution. In this he failed, was arrested and this morning morning for his conduct was fined $100, and by this time is at the rock pile.

Yesterday proved a very unfavorable day for the match between the Carondelet Gun Club and the St. Clair Club of East St. Louis, but still the shooting was unusally fine. Sweepstakes with five glass balls participated in by members of both clubs, resulted in Mike Welsh, F. X. Labruyere, Henry Nagel and Herman Nagel breaking all the balls. In the match between the two clubs there were six shooters from each, twenty balls, making a total of 240 balls. This resulted in each side breaking 106 balls, leaving but 28 whole balls. In this match Mike Welsh, of East St. Louis, and Herman Vogel, of the Carondelet Club, broke their 20 balls. There were other matches, all displaying great skill on the part of both clubs.

A BRUTAL OUTRAGE.

Gross Abuse of Authority by an Officer.

Outrageous Assault on Two Well-Known Citizens—A Case for Investigation.

Capt. Mayne and Fred Rawlins, two English residents of independent means, both well known in down town circles, appear in the Police Court to-morrow morning to answer a charge preferred against them by a police officer. They were arrested on Thursday night for loitering on the street corner and disturbing the peace. The hearing was continued until to-morrow, when both gentlemen will be represented by counsel.

A POST-DISPATCH reporter met Capt. Mayne this morning, and he gave the following version of the arrest:

"This is one of the worst cases of abuse of authority that I ever heard of, and I do not intend to let the matter drop. The whole truth can be stated in a few words. My friend Mr. Rawlins stood with me a few moments on Thursday night at the Pine and Seventh street corner, near the Golden Lion. We were chatting quietly together prior to dispersing homeward. I live out west and was anxious to know how the owl cars ran after midnight. An officer approached the corner from Olive street. He was a big Irishman. I spoke to him as he came near us, and civilly inquired for his car-time schedule. The bluff answer I got was that he was not a timekeeper; it was none of his business to keep time-tables; he was not paid to do that kind of thing. I remarked that I understood every officer carried a time-card, but to say the least of it he might be more civil. The officer muttered some oath, and his rudeness ruffled me. I then asked him for his number, saying that civility was due to every one. He then made a movement towards us and said very insolently: 'Come, now, you fellows, had better be moving on before I move you.' At the same time he attempted to shove my friend Rawlins, who was indignant and said: 'Look here, Mr. Officer, hands off! If you insult me your gilt buttons will not protect you.' The officer, whose number I observed was 12, then raised his club with both hands and aimed a terrific blow at Rawlins, who threw up his arm and protected his head, but received the full force of the blow on his arm and elbow, making severe contusions. The officer then came at me, and to save myself I fell flat on the ground. Having a wife and family I was anxious to keep out of danger. The officer then collared me and tore my clothes and I was hauled to the Chestnut street station, where the charge of loitering and disturbance of the peace was put against me. Rawlins walked down to the station with me and was arrested likewise as soon as we got there. I asked the sergeant in charge to take particular notice of the fact that Rawlins and I were both perfectly sober at the time. We were thrown into cells for the night with a lot of dirty negroes and in the morning were handcuffed to two negro murderers and taken to the Four Courts in the Black Maria with twenty colored prisoners. At the calaboose we specially asked for a messenger to be sent down to us in order that we might communicate with our friends, but it was not heeded; neither could we ascertain the name of the officer who assaulted us. We were subjected to every indignity that could be offered us, and Rawlins has been obliged to keep his bed for days on account of his injuries."

Capt. Mayne has placed the matter in the hands of B. R. Davenport, who will present the facts before the Police Board to-morrow.

FOUND IN A QUARRY.

The Body of an Unknown Man Who is Supposed to Have Suicided.

The Caroner received word this morning that an unknown man had been found dead in the vicinity of Twentieth and University streets. There is an abandoned stone quarry there which has not been used for a number of years. It has been partially filled so that from the street to the present excavation there is a distance of about sixty feet. This morning a young lad living near by was playing on the margin of the hole, when he saw lying in the bottom the body of a man. He quickly informed a policeman, and after much trouble it was fished out. The man had apparently been about 45 years old. He was well dressed, and his general appearance indicated that he had been in good circumstances at one time. His clothing was searched, but there was nothing to indicate who he was. From inquiries made in the neighborhood it was found that the man had been loafing about for three or four days before he was missed. He said he was out of money and could not find anything to do. He begged something to eat, which was given him by different persons. To several persons he declared his intention of taking his life. No attention was paid to his assertion, as it was thought he was suffering from mental aberration. Day before yesterday he did not show up. He had the appearance, when found this morning, of having been dead at least 48 hours. The body was removed to the Morgue and laid on the slab for identification. Some person who saw him after he was taken from the quarry thought he had lived near Twenty-second and Warren streets, but did not know his name. An inquest will be held.

THE JULY OAT CORNER.

It Culminates at 51c—Heavy Sales to Fix the Price.

An Attempt at Settlement That Falls Through—An Arbitration Probable.

The July oat deal didn't start in with much of a hurrah to-day, and for some time there was a perfect stand-off between the longs and the shorts. At the 10 o'clock call July oats were passed quietly, some parties offering to sell at 51¼c and others to buy at 50c in settlement, while R. S. McCormick & Co., brokers for W. A. Minor and W. A. Haynes, the real longs in the deal, were bidding 50½c regular. Diligent inquiry after this call resulted in bringing to light the fact that the parties interested were striving to agree upon a basis of settlement for the deal, so they could quietly settle up all outstanding contracts and have no such trouble as disturbed the Exchange through the June wheat deal. The longs asked the shorts to meet them and, if possible, agree upon a fair price to settle at, and the shorts consented to do this. There accordingly met in the directors' room of the Exchange at 11 o'clock W. H. Minor, W. A. Haynes, W. L. Green, Jr., D. R. Francis, R. C. Greer, Charles E. Slayback, Web. M. Samuel, Connor Bros., Hubbard & Bartlett, J. C. Ewald, Rolla Billingsley, James A. Gregory, W. P. Rickart, J. Wm. Boyd, T. Bartholow & Co. and A. Davidson, Jr., all of whom were interested in the deal, either as longs or shorts or as their brokers. It was pretty plainly intimated on the floor that the longs were not at all willing to shoulder all the cash oats that would be thrown upon them at the 11:30 call in case they attempted to carry the corner through. Hence their anxiety to make a settlement before they had to purchase the cash. The meeting in the directors' room was a very short one, as the different sides could not come anywhere near a settling price. The longs demanded that 51c be the settling price and the shorts would not hear to anything above 45c. Telegrams from New York were read wherein it was stated that August oats were only worth 49c and the first half of August nominal at about 55c. As it costs fully 11c to lay the oats down in New York the value here of the oats, so the shorts claimed, was only 38c, or at the most 44c. The longs stated that cash oats in New York today were 60c, but the shorts on the other hand at once claimed that New York at 60c was the result of manipulation, and that a shipping value could not be proven at 50c in St. Louis. Curiously enough, some of the parties who were interested over on the short side in July oats and on the long side in June wheat were the loudest in their assertions that with a manipulated market here and in New York a settlement could not be forced upon the shorts here at above a shipping value. As a party on the floor remarked after hearing this, "It makes all the difference in the world whose ox is gored." As soon as the longs found they could not get a settlement out of the shorts at near their terms, the at once instructed their brokers to put on all steam and carry the deal through. In accordance with instructions, Pete McMorrow, the floor man of B. S. McCormick & Co., went into the "pit" and commenced bidding 53c for car lots of cash No. 2 oats. He got a good deal in a few seconds and at once raised his bid to 53½c, at which he got some more, also a little July. Mr. W. H. Minor was seen for a few moments. Said he to the reporter: "I hope you will give us a fair show. Nearly everything St. Louis newspapers write up is in favor of the bears and against the bulls. Now, I think we are doing the fair thing by the shorts. Up in Chicago July oats is going out at 59c and 60c, and at no time have we put the market here above 51c".

THE NOON CALL,

Where cash sales are made, was looked forward to with the keenest interest by all the members, whether interested in July oats or not. Receipts of oats were so extremely heavy to-day—indeed the heaviest ever known for one day in the history of this market—that an exciting time was expected when the sellers of this cash unloaded it upon the longs. The total receipts were reported as 114,000 bushels, and out of 281 cars inspected 199 graded No. 2. When Joe Carr opened his mouth and let "cash oats" slip out a howl arose from the expectant operators. At the same moment Pete McMorrow shouted, "Give 51c!" Then the usual wild rush to sell followed. Joe Carr vainly shouted, "We'll take 'em all. I guess McCormick won't pull out." Every one that had any No. 2 oats to sell was on his feet yelling at the top of his voice and shaking his fingers to attract attention. McCormick didn't pull out, and over 375 cars were sold him, not counting several round lots. It is not probable that near all this amount will be delivered the buyers, however. Passing to July oats McCormick & Co. again bid 51. An attempt was made by some parties to get in some settlements (which are not allowed at this call) and one of them got promptly fined. Dave Francis, with the remark: "I'm taking my medicine and no one else's," bought 20,000 bushels in settlement from McCormick & Co., and other parties came in and did the same, but there were others who wouldn't, or else wanted to make such settlement as would put McC. & Co. in the gap between contracts—and this caused the longs to withdraw their offer to sell at 51c, and only let stand their bid of 51c. Quite an amount sold for July, but nowhere near the amount that the shortage is. After the call some sales in settlement were made at 50½c, but none of these were with the real longs. Subsequently some of the shorts came to time and settled up their contracts with the longs, but there were others who stubbornly refused to settle and who will undoubtedly compel the longs to seek a settlement of their deal before an arbitration committee. The contracts still outstanding were in the neighborhood of 400,000 bushels. It is understood that the longs took $140,000 in hard cash out of the deal, and have still these outstanding contracts to work on. July oats went up to 76½c in New York and 62½c in Chicago, and the longs naturally claim that the price here in St. Louis was by no means extortionate when compared with these other markets. They expect to easily prove a shipping value at 51c, and are prepared to do so. What the longs principally complain of is the way in which certain parties who were short, owing them July oats, went to work and sold them the cash that they should by right have delivered on their contracts. "There is one party on this floor," said one of the longs, "who owes us over 100,000 July oats, and yet he has been selling us cash right along and refuses to fill contracts that he had obligated himself to do. Is it any wonder that St. Louis is in such bad repute with other markets?"

The Chicago Exchange.

CHICAGO, July 31.—The markets on 'Change this morning opened with notable changes. Wheat was 1½@3½ higher, July being the strongest. The wet weather has made a stronger feeling, although the receipts are nearly 300,000 bushels. Corn, which benefits by the rain, is ¼@⅜ lower. The corn receipts are also heavy. Oats are firmer. Pork 10@15 lower under continued hammering, and it is said 2½@5 lower in sympathy, with advices this morning which indicated the rain storm was quite heavy and extended into Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Southern Illinois, lasting twelve hours. The sky is still threatening at 11 a. m. It is not likely that any material damage to the ripened wheat has been done yet, but continued wet weather now would prove disastrous to the wheat fields in this section and northward.

CHICAGO'S WHEAT CORNER.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 31.—To-day is settlement day for the cornered July wheat, and great excitement prevails on the Bard of Trade. A million and a half bushels No. 2 spring wheat in sight is owned by a clique consisting of Armour, Kershaw, Wells, Plankington and Alexander Mitchell, and the price is now run up to $1 34. Parties are short on this wheat 12,000,000 bushels. The programme is to tender winter wheat and if refused, as it will be, to default. Many say they will bring suit for damages in the courts. Rufus Hatch, of New York, is short several million bushels in this city. July wheat was $1 03 in Milwaukee Saturday and $1 13 this morning.

DEFAULTED.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, ILL., July 31.—The shorts have defaulted and an Arbitration Committee will fix the prices. Offers to sell this grade in settlement of contract were made at $1 27. The price touched $1 35. A large number of shorts settled their debts, and Armour makes enough on these to offset a loss on any arbitration decision. The loss of the settling shorts will be $2,000,000.

Two-thirds of the contract for July wheat were settled at $1 28 to $1 33. Half of the remaining shorts tender winter wheat and nearly all default. The price is now $1 35.

TRIUMPH.

The dawn came in through the bars of the blind—
And the winter's dawn is gray—
And said: However you cheat your mind,
The hours are flying away.

A ghost of a dawn, and pale and weak—
Has the sun a heart, I said,
To throw a morning flush on the cheek
Whence a fairer flush has fled?

As a gray rose-leaf that is fading white
Was the cheek where I set my kiss;
And on that side of the bed all night
Death had watched, and I on this.

I kissed her lips, they were half apart,
Yet they made no answering sign,
Death's hand was on her failing heart,
And his eyes said: She is mine.

I set my lips on the blue-veined lid,
Half-veiled by her death-damp hair;
And oh, for the violet depths it hid,
And the light I longed for there!

Faint day and the fainter life awoke,
And the night was overpast;
And I said: Though never in life you spoke,
Oh, speak with a look at last!

For the space of a heart-beat fluttered her breath,
As a bird's wing spread to flee;
She turned her weary arms to Death,
And the light of her eyes to me.

H. C. BUNNER.

ÆSTHETIC GWENDOLEN.

The One Thing of Beauty That is a Joy Forever.

Josef Medill in the Chicago Tribune.

Sunrise in Hoboken.

The first breezes of the awakening day, laden with the balmy scents that the dewy air has caught from the sleeping flowers as it kissed them during the night, are astir, causing the bright green leaves that hang so thickly on every bough to wave to and fro in an indolent fashion, as if loth to awake from the grateful quiet in which they have been hushed during the hours when the stars, those silent monitors of the night whose vigils are now at end, have gemmed the heavens in all their silent splendor. From out the rosy portals of the moon come lambent rays of light, tinging with a golden glory the edges of a cloud-bank, whose sullen visage is in ill-accord with the joyous beauty of the scene.

Under the linden trees that skirt the edges of a broad demesne, two girls are standing—bright-faced, happy-eyed, two-new-hats-every-spring girls, their arms twined about each other in a trustful, sisterly, I-would-lend-you-my-bang-in-a-minute fashion that one sees so often among the dark-skinned maidens in the vineyards of Italy.

"Is it not beautiful, Gwendolen?" asks Aphrodite McGuire, looking up with her pure, oval face into that of her sister. "Do you know, darling," she continues, seeing that the other is too wholly wrapped up in the beauty of the scene to speak, "that the birth of a new day always calls to my mind that time in the life of every girl so fraught with care and responsibility when she stands watching with wistful eyes for the mists of futurity to lift? Up over the rugged hills of her unknown she will soon see advancing in all its resistless power the sunlight that is to illumine her with its radiance or scorch and wither her before the noon be reached. Across the pure and hopeful face pass the darksome shadows of uncertainty and fear, only to be chased away by the ever present hope that calls to her with jocund voice, while strong-limbed youth, secure in the knowledge of its power, laughs back response. The life of woman is indeed a strange admixture, but though the potion be at times bitter and hard to take, after all the toil and travel there comes a peaceful rest, a holy calm, that amply repays for the many struggles and strivings of the past. Hardly has a girl stepped across the threshold of maidenhood with all its sweetness and purity, when her heart's choice falls upon some man—an unworthy one, perhaps, whom she loves, through bleak November or budding May, with a passionate tenderness that is beyond compare. She floats then on a placid stream, whose pretty ripples, laughing in the sunshine, seem only to reflect the joy that is in her heart, but ere long she learns that there sweeps beneath the shimmering surface an undercurrent that is as black as death and as relentless as fate. But after these sad experiences have come and gone, after she has seen the gladsome days of her childhood changed into nights that hold for her only desolation and grief, there comes a time when she stands close-pressed to the bosom of one who loved her devotedly, and whose glad, dark eyes look fondly into hers and say that, through the golden light or the blinding tears, one heart will be ever true, one arm be ever ready to protect. It is then that love shall lighten and lift the pitiless burden of life so completely that even the scars it has left shall pass unnoticed and life go on forever amid a bright halo of contentment and affection. Can anything be more beautiful than this, sister?"

"Nothing in all the wide, wide world," replied Gwendolen, putting away her chewing-gum as she spoke, "except a sealskin sacque."

Senator Mahone's Boy.

From the Washington Post.

Young Mr. Butler Mahone has been posing as Mr. Tug Wilson, by which it is to be understood that the juvenile and slender-legged offspring of the distinguished Readjuster candidate for the next Vice-Presidency has been avenging his outraged honor under the Marquis of Queensbury rules. If the latest reports of the tragedy be correct, as they undoubtedly are, the honor of the Mahone family has been knocked into a cocked hat. It appears that a few evenings since young Mahone, who has not yet ceased to call the elder Mahone "papa," was out on a "bender," familiarly yclept a moonlight excursion, on the Potomac, below the flats. By some horrible mischance a War Department clerk, one of those auburn-haired young things who are remarkable chiefly for the regularity with which they draw their salary, who was attended, as was Master Mahone, by a young lady, stepped on young Mahone's toes as he passed him. Forthwith the mighty wrath of the Mahones rose up in its grandeur, hurriedly buckled on its armor and loudly demanded blood. As soon as the boat landed seconds were sought and found and a duel arranged for Sunday night last on the outskirts of the city. The young man from the War Department was out on time, but young Mahone, whose valor had been steadily and persistently oozing out through his fingers and his outraged toes, did not show up. But on Tuesday evening, as the shades of the declining sun lingered on the grass on the top of Kalaramo Heights as if afraid to leave, young Mr. Butler Mahone and the young man from the War Department faced each other and went to work with their fists. There were but three rounds. In the first round young Mahone executed a back double-somersault that would have done Barnum's prize acrobat great credit, and landed in a mud puddle. In the second round young Mr. Mahone's light pants were split from Dan to Beersheba, his celluloid collar hopelessly dented, and his general appearance betrayed deep disgust and grief. The third and last round resulted in young Mr. Mahone being denuded of wearing apparel and cuffs, and in being landed on a stretcher thoughtfully prepared for the occasion. Young Mr. Mahone now languishes at his father's hotel, his entire countenance bearing a peculiarly surprised and indignant look. He will, of course, revive and take a little more interest in things mundane when he finds that his follies have become more generally known and commented on.

An Expert on Tea-Making.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

Most housewives understand the mystery of making tea, but few know the advantage of the Russian samovar over all other methods of making it. The samovar is a tea-kettle which has its fire in a tube running through it and with a few pieces of lighted charcoal dropped into the tube, maintains the water at boiling point with minimum of evaporation and gives it at that point on the table. And as a beverage the Russian does certainly surpass all other nations in tea-making. We drink it as a stimulant and take it strong in the morning and too strong at night, with milk and sugar as a general thing; we finish and send the tea-things away; but to the Russian it's an all-the-evening enjoyment. The samovar stands on the table and the tea (the delicious yellow variety generally) is put into the tea-pot, the boiling water run on, allowed to stand a moment, and then tea is served mild rather than weak, and more water poured on at once—a little tea added from time to time if needed. I have often seen Russian friends drink a dozen or more cups in the evening. The quick making of the infusion is in accordance with Chinese custom, but there the parallel ends. The addition of sugar—to the Celestial a barbarism—is now opposed by some English tea-drinkers, but the overwhelming majority of opinion is in favor of its use. It seems to me as indispensable to the development of the best appreciation of the tea as salt is to that of beefsteak. The sugar is so neutral as an emollient that it absolutely disguises no quality of the tea, and I hold it to be a cardinal principle in gustatics that where two flavors can be so combined as to sacrifice neither an advance in art is achieved. And the same is true of coffee—the addition of sugar is a development of the beverage. But milk does not come under the same category. When people drink tea as strong as most of us do at breakfast the intense bitter is mollified by milk, but weak tea is made insipid by it.

The Russian adds a slice of lemon, the only addition after sugar which does not deteriorate in the quality of a delicate tea; but he also takes a little rum, a distinct departure from the purist standard, due probably to his general imbibing propensity. Both rum and cognac, having distinct flavors which disguise the quality of the tea, are abuses unless the tea is bad. A delicate yellow tea, with sugar and lemon, is, me judice, the perfection of tea-drinking if made with the samovar. A hint to economists on long steeping of tea (for boiling is a horrible barbarism never to be dreamed of): The samovar is arranged so as to allow the tea-pot to stand in the chimney, keeping the tea at a point just below the boiling indefinitely, and when the tea is of an old crop the flavor will be greatly and judiciously developed by fifteen or twenty minutes' standing on the samovar top. A new crop tea does not require this treatment.

A Yankee Captain Outwitted.

From the Bangor Whig.

Capt. Farrow, of Islesboro, tells a good story of himself which occurred a few years ago while he was trading at Key West. It was a case where a Northern Yankee was outwitted by a Southerner. The Captain was trading in a small vessel, and had been up the coast to Tampa Bay, where he purchased twenty dozen chickens, paying $4 per dozen. The chickens ran all the way in size from a few days old to full-grown ones. At Key West a hotel landlord came alongside and asked the Captain how he sold his chickens. The Captain replied: "If you pick them out I shall charge you $6 per dozen; if you let me pick them out you can have them $3 per dozen." "All right," said the hotel man, "you pick them out." The Captain selected several dozen of the smallest, when the man said: "Go ahead, I want more." The Captain was now among his largest fowls, and wished the man would stop, but he still said: "Go on." The Captain saw the point at last. The man kept him selecting until he purchased the entire lot at a loss of $20 to the owner. After this the Captain sold his chickens on a different plan.

He Bet on the Horses.

New York Special to Chicago Tribune.

An investigation into the mysterious disappearance of Gardner C. Childs, head bookkeeper of the Hydraulic Pump Works Company, of South Brooklyn, shows that he made use of the money he drew from the bank for the purpose of paying the workmen. This money comprised a sum of $10,000, which he professed to have placed in the safe, and departed, saying he was going out to lunch and would be back in time to make out his payroll. Since then he has not been seen. It appears he left the money at his house, and instead placed a bag containing $300 in silver in the safe. This was what was disclosed when the safe was opened to-day. Detectives say that they have discovered the defaulter's whereabouts. Horse-racing is what led to Childs' downfall, he having been a heavy loser.

Menken as Mazeppa.

Review of Recent Biography.

According to Mr. James, the first success of Menken as Mazeppa was quite an accident. J. B. Smith, a bill-poster, had taken the Albany Theater and did not know exactly what to do with it. Menken proposed to play Mazeppa, and be strapped to the horse instead of the usual dummy figure. There was a rehearsal and Menken and the horse tumbled from the "runs" to the stage. The horse was frightened, but Menken was not. "I will go up those 'runs' before I leave the theater," she cried. The next attempt was successful, and so was the performance, which afterward excited New York, London, Paris and Vienna.

The Spree of a Coal Prince.

Pittsburg Special to the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Charles S. Brown, of the firm of Brown & Co., the well-known coal operators, has furnished society circles in this city with a fruitful source of gossip. A day or two ago Brown, who throws his money around in a princely fashion, went out on a spree with James Thompson, the proprietor of the Opera-house saloon, one of the swell saloons of the city. They were accompanied by John Frawley, an agent for the sale of billiard-tables, and a very slick gentleman named J. C. Howard, who is looked upon in police circles as a confidence man, and was arrested on a charge of that character some time ago.

The party went out to the Point Breeze Hotel, in the East End, and indulged in champagne and soft shell crabs. Brown had $10,000 with him, and got very much intoxicated, losing all knowledge of where he was. When he recovered his senses he found himself in Philadelphia, with his money and jewelry, worth $500, gone. Thompson, who was of the party, states that they were all full of champagne, and Brown bet $2,500 with Howard that Thompson could beat Frawley playing billiards. The bet was taken, although Howard is a man of no means. They then went to the Union Depot and took the train for Philadelphia. Here Brown put up his end of the bet in Howard's hands, the man he was betting with, and Brown went out buggy-riding. Thompson states that he and Frawley then went to the Continental Hotel billiard room, and that Frawley won the game. Brown was not present at the game. He is going to institute legal proceedings to recover his money. Where the balance of the money and his jewelry went is still a conundrum. The affair has created a good deal of talk among coal men and in society.

About a year ago Dr. Taylor, while dissecting out the proboscis of a common housefly, discovered minute snake-like animals moving quickly from the proboscis. Continuing his experiments from time to time since then, he finds that house-flies are very frequently inhabited by these animals. He has found them generally in the proboscis of the fly, although sometimes they are found in the abdomen, and he thinks that since flies are carriers of these minute snake-like animals, they may in like manner be conveyors of contagious germs, much smaller bodies.—[Washington Star.

ARABI PASHA has changed his mind about being a monk. He was only monkeying.

IT rained considerably yesterday, and the big bugaboos who ride bicycles and scare horses were not able to get about much. Nobody was killed.

CRITTENDEN started out to build up a personal party in Missouri. He has succeeded. He has a party now that he can comfortably cover with his own two-dollar imitation Panama hat.

THE Prince of Wales wanted to rush off to Egypt along with the desperate Scots Grays, but his solicitious mother begged him to remain at home and the royal rustler kindly deferred to her wishes.

WITH a Governor arraigned before the public as the accomplice of two murders, and with a man at the head of the State University teaching and preaching the doctrine of Secession, it would seem that Missouri would only have to hang a small boy in order to take rank at the head of the column of Bourbonism and Barbarism.

A REWARD of $150 has been offered by the Governor for the capture of the LEWIS boys, who are playing high-daddy in the Southwest. The promise of a pardon should be extended to any gentleman who, for the sake of the glittering reward, may feel it his duty to kill the desperadoes—that being the higher law in Missouri.

A GREAT many people are of the opinion that tobacco is highly injurious to the human family. Tobacco stores and factories are also regarded in many instances as nuisances by the adjacent population. How would it do for the stomach-reformers to start a little crusade against tobacco and lump the business in with the Prohibition movement?

THE refusal of the French Chambers to vote an Egyptian credit and the consequent resignation of the DE FREYCINET Cabinet leaves France in a rather awkward attitude. Preparations had already been made to send a large naval and land force to Egypt to co-operate with the English in "restoring order" to that disturbed land. England is now left alone. She can go ahead with the conquest of Egypt, and when she gets through she will not be compelled to share either spoils or glory with outsiders. MR. BULL ought to be extremely happy.

CAPT. HOOPER, the commander of the revenue cutter Corwin, who achieved considerable distinction last year while searching for the Jeannette, is in disgrace. The brave Captain, it seems, took advantage of his position to further the interests of commerce, and while engaged in his humane work of looking for MR. BENNETT'S lost pole-searchers he carried on a brisk trade with the natives of Alaska. He purchased firearms, liquors and groceries on Government account and exchanged the same for sealskins, furs, ivory, whalebone, etc., which he sold in San Francisco on private account. The name of the high Republican official in Washington who put him up to this trick, and who probably "stood in" with him, has not been divulged, but it must have been a Cabinet officer at least.

ONE of these days, perhaps, we will get at the true inwardness of that clause in the Democratic platform of Missouri which is said to be capable of any sort of construction that the Prohibitionists and anti-Prohibitionists may choose to place upon it. In a letter to the POST-DISPATCH, under date of July 14, the Rev. Dr. ELIOT said: "I am myself indisposed by nature and education to all extreme [illegible]easures and am an advocate of the larges[illegible] [illegible]rty to the individual consistent with th[illegible] [illegible]neral welfare." On the 20th of July the [illegible]ocrats of Ohio assembled in convention [illegible] [illegible]pted Dr. ELIOT'S platform. A fe[illegible] [illegible]e Globe-Democrat [illegible]rial, and then the [illegible]ts of Missouri [illegible] it seems that [illegible] nce of the POST-DISPATCH, formulated the most important, but most evasive, feature of the Democratic platforms of Ohio and Missouri this year.

THE Jefferson City Tribune doesn't want the Democracy of Missouri held responsible for the rabid utterances of HENRY CLAY DEAN against the Germans. It says:

> H. Clay Dean is not the Democratic party of Missouri, nor is the party responsible for what he says when he gets to going under a full pressure of steam. His language in reference to the Germans is his own, and he alone is responsible.

When MR. DEAN utters high moral sentiments, and shows himself to be statesman and philosopher, nobody pays attention to him. When he grows vicious and abusive, and when his public utterances take the form of insanity, the Democratic party is promptly credited with him. MR. DEAN discovered long ago that it was only by being violent and extreme that he could attract attention and he governs himself accordingly when he strikes a convention or a big crowd.

PROHIBITION IN POLITICS.

The present liquor laws of Missouri make it a matter of local option whether saloons shall be permitted to sell intoxicating beverages in any county or not. Under this system less than a majority of the voters of the county can, by organizing for the purpose, elect a County Court which will refuse to license any saloon. All they need is enough Prohibitionists to constitute a balance of power between the Republican and Democratic county tickets, and either side will give them the County Court for the remainder of the offices. In this way we have Prohibition by local option in some counties where, on a square vote on the merits of the question, a majority of the people would prefer the policy of permitting and regulating the retail liquor traffic by license, imposing a considerable local tax on the business. Missouri laws against selling liquor without a license are very severe, but are easily and generally enforced.

It would seem that this system of laws ought to be entirely satisfactory to the Prohibitionists if they had no political aim or purpose. With less than a majority of the voters they can abolish saloons and severely punish liquor-selling in any county of the State. A saloon is much more of a nuisance in our small rural villages than in the larger towns and cities that are well policed. The young bumpkin of Missouri is a venturesome, high-mettled fellow, fond of riding wild horses at break-neck speed, and it requires but little whisky to develop his secret notion that he is something of a desperado, with a natural aptitude for cowboy pranks and dangerous fun. When a squad of these fellows on a visit to a country village get elated with liquor and begin to ride their horses upon the sidewalks and into the stores, and quiet citizens have to turn out and quell the disturbance, it is always a disagreeable and often a serious business. It therefore happens that a great many men vote to prohibit liquor-selling in their own rural districts who would see no good reason for such prohibition in localities maintaining a sufficient police force. And as farmers generally are not conscious of any direct interest in the liquor business, those of them opposing Prohibition on principle are lukewarm on the subject, and easily persuaded to permit a small party of Prohibitionists, holding the balance of power, to foist their policy on the county. Thus has Prohibition already become an issue and a power in county politics to such an extent that the Democratic State Convention the other day was bulldozed by the threat that a declaration from it against Prohibition would defeat a great many Democratic county tickets.

But the Prohibitionists are not satisfied with forcing their policy on some counties where they are in the minority as well as where they constitute a majority. They propose, by the same process of playing upon the cowardice and office-seeking propensities of both parties, to neutralize the will of a large majority of the people and foist upon the whole State a radical change of constitution, implying a startling change in the functions of government, an alarming removal of those ancient landmarks of legislation that protect the rights and property of minorities and individuals. It proposes, under the specious pretense of promoting the general welfare, to ruthlessly destroy, without compensation, the hard-earned property of Missourians in vineyards, breweries and distilleries worth at least $30,000,000, and to strike down lawful industries that now pay taxes to the amount of at least $10,000,000 per annum to our municipal, State and Federal revenues. All this in order to impose upon unwilling St. Louis, unwilling Kansas City, unwilling grape-growing counties, the same industries, the same moral discipline and rules of conduct that a differently situated rural population may be induced to carelessly accept for themselves.

And yet we are told that the organization which proposes to do and is doing all this by bulldozing both the Republican and Democratic parties is not a political organization and must not be opposed or antagonized as a political party; that a question affecting the property and cherished rights of a free people is not a political issue and must be ignored or treated equivocally in the pledges upon which the people are asked to entrust the power of the State Government to this or that party. "What are we here for?" ask the FLANAGANS in State convention, and they answer their own question by action which shows that they are there to ignore the most vital principles of State policy and to dicker with any fanaticism or compromise with any wrong that might otherwise endanger their acquisition of offices and spoils. And while the office-seeking politicians are thus hiding their ostrich heads in the brush the Prohibitionists are capturing not only county governments, but State governments all around us. They have either captured or silenced both the Republican and Democratic organizations in Kansas and Iowa, and the motto emblazoned on the ballot-boxes of both of those States now is, "Put none but Prohibitionists on guard." Wherever the latter hold the balance of power in a district, only Prohibitionists will be elected to Congress, and their programme and purpose is to control every department and function of government in this Union, municipal, State and Federal. Gentlemen who fancy that this is not a political question and that there are no politics in the Prohibition movement are politicians of the bat species, cave-dwellers, belonging neither to birds nor beasts that can face the light of day.

THE conviction of GUY SMITH, the twelve-year-old boy, who killed his father near Kirkwood a few weeks ago, was quite a surprise. The murder was a very atrocious and deliberate one, but nobody supposed that a jury would return a verdict which would impose upon the law the unpleasant duty of hanging a child. The testimony in the case shows throughout that the boy SMITH is an abnormal creature. His temperment has always been that of a sullen, rabid dog. His passion was almost ungovernable, and when irritated there was no length that he would not go to be avenged. This was no more than insanity. There is nothing, it seems, in the laws of our State to prohibit the execution of a child over seven years of age. It is held that beyond that age there is a thorough knowledge of right and wrong, and responsibility for acts sets in. It is hardly probable that young SMITH will be marched to the gallows and strangled by the majestic law. Even if he does not secure a second trial Executive clemency will probably be invoked in his behalf, but the question rises what is to be done with a such a creature? He is not fit to grow up in society; his mental defects scarcely qualify him for admission to an asylum for the insane, and if he is sent to the Penitentiary for anything short of life, he will be turned out upon the world eventually as a sullen, disgraced criminal with all the murderous instincts which have already distinguished him sharpened and intensified. If the State wasn't plunged in such hopeless poverty, we would suggest the establishment of a reformatory prison for youthful criminals, where there would be personal restraint coupled with good schooling, useful trades and moral example. They have something of the kind in Ohio and other States and it is found to work exceedingly well.

A FEW days before the late Democratic primaries in this city we made some inquiries about a "slush" fund, being anxious to learn whether the gentlemen who had bled themselves to elect CRITTENDEN two years ago were doing anything in behalf of an indorsement of his Administration. The editor of the Versailles Gazette, published weekly in Morgan county, caught the point and smote us thuswise:

> Ah, that's what't the matter with you, is it? You are never satisfied unless there is a corruption fund handy, so that you can get a finger in it. A paper built up and sustained by "slush" money is bound to come to grief when the "slush" runs out. That seems to be the predicament the P.-D. is in just now.

Now we must say that we like a good retort, a sharp thrust or a pungent witticism. We appreciate real human ability wherever we find it. As soon as we had read this intensely cunning and apposite paragraph we said, "There's a man that we want to secure for the POST-DISPATCH." A telegram was sent to an acquaintance in Versailles asking if it would be possible to hire the editor of the Gazette to come up and help write scathing and sarcastic paragraphs for our scathing and cynical paper. The answer came back: "Won't go for less than $8,000 a year. He is the smartest man we have in the county. He is young yet, but we expect to run him for President of the United States in about ten years." Of course we are disappointed, but we have done all that we could to secure this bright intellect for the benefit of the readers of the POST-DISPATCH. We can't afford to pay an assistant editor $8,000 a year just now, but we expect to be rich enough in a couple of years, and then the ROCHEFOUCAULD of the Missouri weekly press is our meat.

APPLICATION has been made to the Governor in due form for the pardon of PATE, the boss gambler, now serving out a six months' sentence in jail. CRITTENDEN has taken the papers under advisement, but it is announced that he will not grant a pardon unless it is petitioned for by a considerable number of the citizens of St. Louis. This shows the inconsistency and cowardice of the man better than anything that has occurred since he began to disgrace the Executive office of the State. When PATE was first convicted on his own admissions and was sentenced to jail for six months CRITTENDEN gave him a pardon without even being asked for it, and before he had official knowledge that the man was in jail. His ground was that the law was too severe, and, having succeeded in breaking up gambling, its mission had been filled and there was no necessity for enforcing its penalties. Now he delays and dallies and withholds his pardon, saying to the people of St. Louis: "If you want BOB PATE pardoned you must sue for his release at the very foot of the Executive chair." Public morals and the best interests of the city demand that PATE should serve out his sentence. He has defied and offended the law, and his release would only add further contempt to that which is already felt by the vicious classes for Justice and all her belongings and methods. A pardon for him now would be extremely demoralizing, and it would be construed by the present Police Board to mean a re-licensing of gambling in St. Louis. But what are we to think of CRITTENDEN in the face of the record he has already made? Is he not all that we have represented him to be?

THE following interesting card appeared in the Globe-Democrat yesterday:

> The public will please not form any opinion about the sensational article in the POST-DISPATCH relative to me until such a time as I can prove my innocence. I have never been under arrest and never intend to be. Respectfully,
> M. WHITTY.

In asking for the suspension of public opinion until such time as innocence can be established a man should always fix a date. It would be very trying on the public to be compelled to suspend its verdict for twelve or fifteen years. We are delighted to know that Mr. WHITTY has never been under arrest, but when he declares he never intends to be does he not draw upon the resources of Hope and mock at Fate? No man knoweth the day nor the hour when the policeman cometh in this free country. Mr. WHITTY may be placed under arrest before he is a year older for harboring a vicious dog, carrying a concealed weapon or lounging on the street corners. It is not always well to be too confident.

WE have received of late several anonymous communications from temperance fanatics in which we are accused of being in the pay of the brewers and saloon-keepers because we insist that the State of Missouri is sufficiently supplied with legislation on the subject of the liquor traffic and because we are not willing to see one of the dearest principles of a republican form of government violated. One interesting but ignorant fool writes this morning to say: "No doubt you get well paid for every one of your trashy editorials." This would seem to confirm the suspicion that the average human being is an infamous scoundrel himself and is only happy when attributing mercenary motives to his neighbors. We could make a very fine living with the POST-DISPATCH if there were no brewers on the face of the earth by simply publishing the crimes of the class of idiots who write anonymous letters.

IT is apparent now to the great organ of English thought that the Turks are not sending troops to Egypt to assist in restoring order, but really to co-operate with ARABI PASHA in his great work of freeing the country from foreign control. Left alone by the Powers and betrayed by the Turks, the English will be likely to have their hands full, especially if they conclude to teach the Sultan a small lesson by way of a side issue.

IT is rumored in high social circles that President ARTHUR is about to marry a daughter of old FRELINGHUYSEN. This is about the fifteenth lady who has been assigned to the widower President since GUITEAU placed the baton of power in his hand. It is to be hoped that he will marry somebody soon, for the White House is said to be sadly in need of a mistress.

IT was expected that ARTHUR would send in a veto of the River and Harbor bill to-day. The measure, as it now stands, contains a clear steal of at least $8,000,000. If it is vetoed Congress will still have time to pass a measure free from jobbery. A veto would be about the proper thing.

WE have had no genuine sunstrokes in St. Louis this season. In New York last week they were as common as small potatoes.

PERSONAL.

—Charles H. Reed has made out a bill for $5,000 against the Government for defending Guiteau. Mr. Reed is evidently somewhat enamored of himself.

—Manager Abbey says that Sara Bernhardt Damalas is getting stout. It will probably be sometime, however, before she is put on exhibition as the champion fat woman.

—Tug Wilson and Mr. Sullivan are having their day and should enjoy it. Before many weeks some one will arise who will knock them out of time and go marching on to fame.

—Three Leavenworth girls, each one of whom claims to be the belle of the city, are sick abed with the measles, and there is a fine opening for some girl who wears No. 2's to step in and take the cake.

—A Cairo clergyman, who told his congregation from the pulpit a week ago that only tipplers and drunkards were sunstruck, was prostrated on the street the very next day, and now he hardly knows how to get out of his fix.

—Queen Victoria is very fond of amusements in her way. She proposes to give the servants at Windsor a ball. She leads the Irish a pretty dance, and is having a pretty time disemboweling the Arabs. She's a very nice old person, this Victoria.

—It has been discovered that Gardner C. Childs, the Brooklyn man who is $10,000 short in his accounts, owes his downfall to unsuccessful turf speculations. This should be a warning to all young men not to bet on the wrong horse.

—The mournful intelligence comes from India that the Guikwar of Baroda is dead. As the Guikwar had 200 wives his untimely decease in the height of the ice cream season can hardly fail to have a depressing effect upon India's commercial prosperity.

—A cablegram says that "it is rumored that Arabi Pasha has withdrawn with the bulk of his army to Damanhour, leaving outposts at Kafr-el-dwar." It is believed that the outposts are perfectly safe in case the commander of the opposing forces undertakes to tell his men the name of the place they are going to.

A Suggestion to Our Base Ball Managers.

ST. LOUIS, July 31, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Seeing that you kindly express the views of your subscribers and being an ardent admirer of base ball, I wish to express an opinion seconded by a number of my friends concerning the tendency of the management of our St. Louis Browns. I can not understand how, with the past experience, seeing base ball dwindle and die when it was only in its prime, killed by fifty-cent admission imposition and fraud, the present management can begin to pursue the same cause. Raising the price of admission to 50c on the south side is but a preliminary step to the other rise, and a virtual blow at the 25c fee. We the patrons of the game are undeniably liberal and I doubt whether [illegible]-tenths care much for the additional qu[illegible] but the principle hurts us. We do not w[illegible] [illegible]cquire the reputation of fools or "suckers," capable of standing any extortion or imposition, and of having no knowlege of the value of what we receive, and the management will so discover if they persist in their ruinous course. Let fewer reserved seats and more room for the masses be the cry, and if the seats are filled placard standing room only. Hoping the management will take this kindly, as it is meant, I remain, respectfully,

WOODRUFF.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Allow me as the representative of a baker's dozen to heartily indorse through the medium of your columns the sentiment of the seven tow-lines as expressed in yesterday's G.-D. Now, the avaricious president of the Brown stockings, to still further fill his plethoric pockets, takes an unfair advantage of the interest heretofore manifested in our national game. As an evidence of greed it "takes the cake." Now, although the baker's dozen have often taken reserved seats, we object to 50 cens as the general admission fee of a 25 cent league, and this is practically what Von der Ahe did yesterday. So we will discontinue our patronage while such petty tricks are practiced. Please insert this and oblige

PROHIBITION.

What the Missouri Papers are Saying About the Platform.

From the Kansas City Star (Ind.)

The Democratic convention, with characteristic Bourbon cowardice, dodged the Prohibition question, disgusting both Prohibitionists and anti-Prohibitionists. We can partially forgive the convention for this action, however, in view of its manly and ringing utterance on the tariff question.

Warrenton Banner (Dem.)

If we had been permitted to write the anti-Prohibition plank for the Democratic platform it would have read something like this: We are unqualifiedly opposed to prohibition because it is an interference with the individual rights of the citizen, and is directly in conflict with the true spirit of American liberty. We are opposed to it, further, because it would confiscate millions of property, throw thousands of laborers out of employment, cripple our industries, increase our taxes, and place us on a level with Kansas and Iowa.

From the Jefferson City Tribune (Dem.)

Col. J. M. McMichael, leader of the Prohibitionists in Northwest Missouri, says the clause in the platform referring to Prohibition suits him and the anti-Prohibitionists say it is quite strong enough for them, and thus are the two extremes made to meet on the same platform. Col. McMichael says the question is not a political one and should not be made an issue. A large number of the delegates who oppose Prohibition, and who will be found in the front ranks battling against it if it becomes necessary, were disposed to take this view of it. The "sumptuary clause" in the platform is all that is necessary for the Democrats to say on the subject.

From the Lebanon Rustic-Leader (Dem.)

The Germans of Gasconade county, composing a fair majority of the population of that county, have declared themselves unalterably opposed to Prohibition laws. These people have put land in cultivation that, without them, would have remained idle forever. The lands are specially adapted to the culture of grapes. Not much of anything else will grow there. They have fine vine yards and have accumulated great wealth. To have their means of subsistence and prosperity ruthlessly snatched from them to gratify the wants of a few who try to meddle with the habits of others, is an outrage the Germans are not prepared to submit to. A prohibitory law will depopulate such counties as Gasconade, Osage, Franklin, and other vine-growing counties, and instead of being a country where thrift and prosperity meet one at every step, it will become a desolation. God has made that soil adapted to vine culture, and it ought to be used for that purpose.

From the Lexington Intelligencer-Democrat.

The intention of the committee on resolutions at Jefferson City, Wednesday, was to ignore the subject of Prohibition as a partisan political question, and such was the intention of the convention. The plank of the platform which seems to allude to the subject really means nothing as applied to it. The view of the convention was that there are thousands of good Democrats on both sides of this question. The Intelligencer is unalterably opposed to Prohibition, but it does not, therefore, hold that every Democrat who favors it is a traitor to the principles of his party; and it believes, this being a representative government, that if a respectable number of the people ask for the submission of the constitutional amendment their request should be granted. Then the question can be fairly met at the polls. The convention did well in excluding the subject, but it would have done better if it had omitted entirely the plank which will be construed to touch upon it, but which really in that respect amounts to nothing.

Tom Crit's Critics.

From the Miami News.

Gov. Crittenden did not create any great enthusiasm at Warrensburg Monday.

From the St. Charles Journal.

Gov. Crittenden has not added anything to his reputation by the speech he made at Warrensburg. It was the silliest attempt at a vindication of his official acts that a public man could be guilty of.

From the Glasgow Journal.

T. T. Crittenden has been elected one of the trustees of the new University to be built at Sedalia, and has accepted. If he undertakes to administer the affairs of the University as miserably as he has those of the State, his colleagues will have to sit down on him.

From the Macon Republican.

Gov. Crittenden's speech at Warrensburg on Monday last was a disappointment to the people of the State generally. He was invited to answer the charges made against him, and in place of doing so throws himself on the charity of his old friends. Why did he so flagrantly abuse the pardoning power of his office?

From the Jefferson City Tribune.

We understand that the three recently appointed Police Commissioners came to the convention to look after the St. Louis delegation, who were selected by the police force for Martin for Supreme Judge. It is a notorious fact that the Martin delegation were elected by the use of police at the polls, and it is charged that the Police Commissioners were present to see that the delegates obeyed the will of the machine, and to use their personal influence for their favorite. If these men were here for that purpose they had better have stayed at home. These gentlemen can be very well excused from the arduous and difficult task of running our State Conventions. We are not violently opposed to a well managed party machine or an intelligent, first-class, able "boss," who can enforce discipline and organize victory, but we would like to have a word to say about who should handle the machine. We don't want the "bosses" appointed over us and we want bigger men than the three St. Louis Police Commissioners. They certainly misconstrue their duties. They were not appointed to run St. Louis primaries or dictate to State Conventions, and the sooner they get their eyes open to the fact that they are not in control of the machine of the party the better it will be for them. They have already discovered, perhaps, that it requires more power to the square inch to run the machine than they can command.

THE JUNE WHEAT APPEAL.

A Quorum of Directors Expected to Meet and Decide the Question.

The June wheat deal will come before a quorum of the directors of the Exchange this evening, as Mr. Keiser, the absent director, returns to the city to-day. No new evidence will be heard, the case to be submitted entirely upon the testimony sent up by the Committee of Arbitration. The lawyers of each party will be allowed to plead orally or by brief. It is whispered about the floor, although on what authority no one knows, that the directors will give a very sensational decision, which will be a genuine as well as an unpleasant surprise to the shorts. Whether this will be the case or not certainly neither the longs or shorts on the June deal feel particularly confident of the result. One of the directors told a POST-DISPATCH reporter this evening that if the commission sat this afternoon a decision might be expected by Wednesday morning. It is claimed by some of the members that the sudden conversion of two or three brokers who were long on the June wheat deal and who are short on the July oat squeeze, and who complain as loudly of wicked manipulation now, as they vindicated the sanctity of contracts then, will have a material effect upon the directors. The result of the Armour spring wheat corner in Chicago to-day is also being watched as a straw indicating what the St. Louis Exchange will do. Armour has evidently made up his mind to squeeze the marrow out of the shorts, and the St. Louis merchants who are in that abbreviated interest are watching hostilities in Chicago closely and devouring every telegram which arrives from the seat of war eagerly.

THE BICYCLE.

How the Missouri Club Celebrated Its Anniversary Yesterday.

The members of the Missouri Bicycle Club held the first anniversary of the organization at the residence of the president, Mr. Richard Garvey, 10 South Twenty-second street, at 8 a. m. yesterday. The disagreeable condition of the weather prevented many from attending who would otherwise have been present. The weather, however, did not dampen the spirits of those who did attend, and they were rewarded by a splendid bill of fare. After breakfast those who brought their wheels mounted and took a run to the Fair Grounds, where they were caught by the storm and obliged to seek shelter. After the storm subsided they returned home. At the breakfast table those present were presented with a handsome engraved souvenir of the occasion by Mr. Garvey, which contains a list of the members, a number of songs sung by them when on the road and many other items of interest to bicyclists, among which are the fastest records made by members of the club, and also the longest distance in one day. The following is a list of the records: One mile in 3 minutes and 1¼ seconds, by Arthur Young; 5 miles in 18 minutes and 52 seconds, by Geo. G. Bain; 20 miles in 1 hour 17 minutes and 1 second, by C. E. Stone, and 25 miles in 1 hour 45 minutes and 40 seconds, by Arthur Young. The longest run in twenty-four hours was made by Messrs. Geo. M. Francis and Arthur Young to Pacific and return, a distance of ninety-three miles. Several members are preparing for a hundred-mile ride, which will take place shortly. St. Alphonsus Ligouri.

The Catholic Church will celebrate the feast of St. Alphonsus Ligouri on Wednesday, August 2. As this saint is the patron of the Rock Church on Grand avenue, and also the founder of the Order of Redemptorist, who are in charge of that church, the solemnities of the occasion will be transferred to the following Sunday, August 6, when there will be a solemn High Mass at 10 o'clock, during which the panegyric of the saint will be pronounced. On this same day at 4:30 p. m. the laying of the cornerstone of the new school will take place. At this hour the assembled societies and others will march from the church to the grounds adjoining, where an appropriate discourse will be delivered. After the sermon the procession will move to the southwest corner of the building where, with prescribed ceremonial, the cornerstone will be laid. All the friends of the Redemptorist Fathers as well the parisioners are invited to take part in the solemnities of the occasion. The attendance on this feast is usually very large, Catholics from all the parishes in the city participating in tha celebration.

A Mysterious Valise.

The articles were found on Thirteenth between Anglerodt and Destrehan. The white shirt has the name of Mack written in indelible ink at the bottom of the bosom. The police are of the opinion that the owner of the valise has been done away with and that the things were dropped by the robbers or murderers. The fact that blood was found on one of the shirts confirms this theory. An earnest endeavor will be made to fathom the mystery. The things are at the Fourth District Sub-Station.

THE BOY MURDERER.

Can Guy Smith, the Parricide, be Legally Executed in Missouri?

ST. LOUIS, July 30.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

So many discussions have arisen, and so much has been written and published on the question whether or not Guy Smith, the boy murderer, convicted at Clayton on Saturday of the murder of his father, at Kirkwood, could be hanged, and thinking that it would be of interest to your readers, I have undertaken to present the law on the subject. There is only one section in the statute which can be claimed to have any bearing on the question, directly or indirectly, to-wit, section 1666, which is as follows:

"Whenever any person shall be convicted of any felony committed while under 18 years of age, he shall be sentenced to imprisonment in a county jail not exceeding one year, instead of imprisonment in the Penitentiary," etc.

This section was construed and passed upon in the case of the State vs. Barton, reported in 8 Mo. App. 15 and 71 Mo. 289, before the passage of the amended statute above quoted; but as the amendment only changed the age from 16 to 18 years, and in other respects allowed it to remain as it was, the argument applies with equal force here. Barton, a boy of 15 years of age, was indicted and convicted in St. Charles county for murder in the first degree, and, after conviction, filed his motion to commute sentence to imprisonment in the County Jail for one year, basing his authority for such action on section 1666. The motion was overruled by the trial court and the defendant appealed to the St. Louis Court of Appeals and subsequently to the Supreme Court. In passing on the matter the Court of Appeals, through Lewis, P. J., says: "The real meaning of this section (referring to section 1666) will not be altered if we transpose its concluding terms, thus: "Whenever, etc., * * * instead of imprisonment in the penitentiary, as prescribed by the preceding provisions of this law, he shall be sentenced to imprisonment in a county jail not exceeding one year."

It is thus apparent that imprisonment in the county jail is provided, not as an original punishment, but as a substitute for imprisonment in the Penitentiary as prescribed, etc. It follows that the jail penalty is not here to be called into existence upon any terms. It may appear as a substitute for the Penitentiary, but it is nowhere said that it may be adopted in lieu of the death penalty. Again our Supreme Court in the same case, through Napton, J., says: "This section (1666) seems capable of but one construction, and that is to require imprisonment in a county jail as a substitute for imprisonment in the Penitentiary, where such offenses as were punishable by imprisonment in the Penitentiary have beeen committed by a youth under sixteen [now eighteen.] A felony punishable by death is not within the letter or meaning of the statute."

The judgment of the trial court was affirmed in both instances and the defendant executed. Therefore, that disposes of our statutory provision as bearing on this case.

But we find this difference in the case under discussion and that of Barton. Guy Smith was only twelve years of age when he committed the crime and Barton was fifteen.

Let us examine the common law. In IV Blackstone, No. 23, we read: "With regard to capital crimes the law is still more minute and circumspect, distinguishing with greater nicety the several degrees of age and discretion. By the ancient Saxon law the age of twelve years was established for the age of possible discretion, when first the understanding might open, and from thence to the age of fourteen it was ætas pubertati proxima in which he might or might not be guilty of crime, according to his natural capacity or incapacity. This was the dubious stage of discretion. But under twelve it was held that he could not be guilty in will, neither after fourteen could he be presumed innocent, of any capital crime which he in fact committed. But by the law as it now stands, and has stood at least ever since the time of Edward III., the capacity of doing ill or contracting guilt is not so much measured by years and days as by the strength of the delinquent's understanding and judgment. For one lad of 11 years old may have as much cunning as another of 14; and in these cases our maxim is that malitia supplet aetatem. Under 7 years of age, indeed, an infant cannot be guilty of felony; for then a felonious discretion is almost an impossibility in nature; but at 8 years old he may be guilty of felony. Also, under 14, though an infant shall be prima facie adjudged to be doli incapax, yet if it appear to the court and jury that he was doli capax, and could discern between good and evil, he may be convicted and suffer death." A girl of thirteen has been burnt for killing her mistress, and a boy of ten and another of nine years old, who had killed their companions, actually hanged. And there was an instance in the last century where a boy of eight years old was tried at Abingdon for firing two barns, and, it appearing that he had malice, ravenge and cunning, he was found guilty and executed. The evidence of that malice which is to supply age ought to be strong and clear beyond question of a doubt. In our State juries are triers of fact under instructions of law from the court. Therefore I say that the age of Guy Smith alone will not save him, but must be submitted to the jury together with the other facts, by the court, under proper instructions. I could cite numerous authorities to support my position, but I will not encroach further on your valuable space.

Too Much Will-Power.

From the Detroit Free Press.

Three or four citizens were the other day having a confab at the east entrance of the City Hall in regard to will-power, and there was one of the group who dared to go far enough to assert that a man of strong will-power could draw a person to him from a distance of one hundred feet.

"Try it—try it!" exclaimed one whose faith was very slight.

"I don't say that I can do it, because I may not have the strength of will."

"Well, there's a man down by the gate who is looking up and down as if undecided. Bend your will on him and see if you can draw him this way."

"I'll try it, just to please you," replied the advocate, and he fastened his gaze on the man, clenched his hands, and put forth a mighty effort. The man at the gate seemed to feel it. He looked across at the monument—down the street—then up at the hall.

"I'll be hanged if you aren't doing it!" whispered one of the group.

The advocate braced himself for a greater effort, and the man at the gate left his place and walked straight towards the building. He advanced like one in a dream, and not a man dared move a hand. He came closer and closer, and as he reached the steps he pulled a paper from his pocket, held it up to the man with the will-power and quietly remarked:

"Mr. Blank, here's that old bill for three cords of wood! I'm tired trotting around after you, and want my money to-day or I'll begin suit."

Whoa Emma!

Joseph Medill in the Chicago Tribune.

"Back, I say!"

The silvered foam of the sea was plashing in rhythmic cadence on the white sands of the beach, while here and there a fleck of wavering light from the signal buoy on Sardine Shoals—that dreaded spot beneath whose treacherous waves so many goodly ships freighted with precious burdens from far Cathay and Muskegon had disappeared forever—brought into bold relief against the western sky Giroffe McClosky's off foot as she stood by Bertram Perkins' side that soft June evening.

"You do not love me," said the girl, speaking slowly, "or you could not speak so cruelly. On his beautiful night, when the hills are suffused with amber haze, through which the stars glow and throb in silent splendor, we should think of naught but love—pure, passionless love, that will bind our hearts together in a chain whose every link shall be a kiss; whose every fold a sweet caress."

For an instant the man did not reply. Then the girl stretched forth to him her bare white arms, that glistened like marble in the growing dusk, but he heeded them not.

"Will you not speak to me, sweetheart?" she said, an infinite pathos in the words.

No answer came. Again the outstretched arms pleaded mutely and with pitiful eloquence for the joy that was never to be. Looking at her with a haughty, almost Vice-President Davis expression on his face, Bertram again said: "Back, I say."

With a despairing gleam in her darksome eyes, Giroffe turned away and began to sob as if her corset would break. "God help me," she said, in despairing accents, "I cannot back."

"Why not?" asked Bertram.

"Because," was the reply in tear-stained tones, "my polonaise is too eternally tight."

From a New York Letter.

The announcement of a six-story building without windows gives one a new idea of architecture. The object is to secure perfect safety against fire, and if such a thing be possible it will indeed be attained. The safety deposit business was started twenty years ago by Francis P. Jenks. It was a new idea, and it took some time to familiarize the public to such a scheme. It proved, however, a success, and became highly profitable. Other safety deposit establishments were then opened, and at present there are at least a dozen, though few of this number are of real importance. The first safety deposit company was intended solely for bonds and valuable papers, but the newly projected establishment will receive plate, pictures, furniture, and miscellaneous valuables. The area of the structure being nearly a half acre, the six stories will give a vast capacity, which will be eagerly improved, as this will be the only really fireproof warehouse in the city. Its location being opposite the Union Depot will be very convenient for the Vanderbilts, who have nearly $100,000,000 of bonds and need just such an institution. Jay Gould also lives near by, and will find this a very convenient place to keep his millions. The Astors have a fireproof building of their own (at least it is called so), but there is no telling what is fireproof until it be tested, which often proves ruinous. It would not be surprising if the Astors also became patrons of the new establishment.

Another Brooklyn Scandal.

New York Special to Chicago Tribune.

Out of a scandal which involves some wealthy residents of Brooklyn, Eastern District, has grown a suit for $50,000, which came before Justice Cullen to-day in the shape of an application for an order of arrest against the defendant. The plaintiff is Edward Blohem, brother to the plaintiff's mother. Schnell accuses his uncle of robbing him of the affections of Mrs. Schnell, and sues for the above-named sum. The plaintiff is 35 years old and his wife is 27. They have been married nine years and have one child. Last year they went to Europe, and the defendant folowed them. While abroad the plaintiff heard some expressions of affection passing between his wife and his uncle. He found out afterwards that Blohem was in the habit of giving his wife money. When they came back from Europe Blohem came with them, and, it is stated, was found in a position of undue familiarity with the wife when on the steamer. When they got home Mrs. Schnell was in the habit of meeting Blohem at her mother's, and the presents of money began again. The evident purpose of Blohem was to get the wife to seek a divorce and marry him—a fact shown by various love-letters written to Mrs. Schnell and found by the husband. The parties are all very wealthy and stand high socially. The case has created a good deal of scandal, it appearing also from the testimony that Mrs. Schnell had several times attempted suicide.

A Blast at Beecher.

New York Letter to Cincinnati Gazette.

The fact that Beecher has recently been eulogizing the Romish Church awoke general surprise. It may, however, be explained in the following manner: Beecher is now accused by the heirs of his recent laborer (Turner) of embezzling the dead man's estate. Turner was an economical bachelor, and, supposing his employer to be an honorable man, made him his savings bank. The will of the deceased laborer calls for several thousands of dollars, but nothing is found. Mrs. Beecher now admits that after Turner's death she examined his chest and destroyed a number of what she called "worthless papers." The heirs, however, believe that her husband's notes were included in this illegal destruction, and the public, with few exceptions, believe this also. The Turners are Irish, and hence have the sympathy of their nationality in that neighborhood. Beecher feels conscious of his predicament, and condones by blowing for the church with which they are connected. It has been said that "soft words butter no parsnips," but Beecher seems to be of a different opinion. The question now to be settled is, how much "blowing" he will give for $5,000, which is the estimated amount of the deceased laborer's estate.

A Flower in a Dead Baby's Hand.

From the Lewistown (Me.) Journal, July 17.

After a young child had died and had been laid in its casket, in Auburn, a few days ago, a rosebud was plucked from a nieghboring garden and the stem was placed in one of the lifeless little hands. A day or two elapsed between this incident and the funeral ceremony. In the interval the rosebud in the hand of clay was seen to gradually unfold. When the service was held the bud had become a blossom. The phenomenon gave peculiar pleasure to the afflicted family, and was very prettily referred to by the clergyman, who compared the unfolding of the rosebud to the blossoming in heaven of the child.

INSANELY JEALOUS.

A High-Life Tragedy in San Francisco—Mixed Religious.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

A tragedy in high life on Van Ness avenue occurred this morning, when Samuel Sachs, one of the millionaire dry goods firm of Sachs, Heller & Co., shot his wife, who is a daughter of ex-Collector of the Port Shannon. The wound is not necessarily dangerous, but it may result fatally from the excited condition in which his wife has been for some time.

From all accounts it appears that Sachs, who has been very jealous of his wife, visited his house this morning in a carriage and there found his wife, and accused her of certain infidelities, and on her denying the charge he drew a pistol upon the woman, who fled through the hall screaming for help. Quickly pursuing her the maddened husband discharged two shots at his victim, but one of which took effect. On her falling in a fainting condition from fright and loss of blood, Sachs dodged out of the front door and, entering the hack, was driven rapidly off. The police arrived too late to be of any assistance, but proceeded to search for the assailant. Mrs. Shannon, who was stopping with her daughter at the time, dispatched a messenger for a surgeon, and had her daughter placed upon her bed and cared for.

The origin of the trouble is clouded in mystery, but from all sources the following history of the troubles which resulted so disastrously have been gleamed. The husband, Samuel Sachs, who is a Hebrew, married Miss Shannon, who was young and considered a belle and a beauty. The marriage, owing to the difference in religious faith, excited great comment at the time and was not approved of by the parents, and in order to unite the couple found that an elopement was necessary. After a time the parents became reconciled, and the father of the groom, who is very wealthy, fitted up an elegant residence in which the couple lived. They have two children, a boy and a girl. For some time past Sachs has received several anonymous letters informing him of alleged scandalous doings of his wife. Incited by these, Sachs, it is said, has repeatedly interrogated his wife, who has denied all defamatory stories. During these stormy scenes, Sachs has so far forgotten himself as to beat and kick his wife in a most brutal manner. Last Saturday Sachs, having heard more of his wife's action, went home in a rage, and again accusing his wife of these actions, which were again denied as base slanders, struck her in the face, knocking her to the floor, and then kicked the prostrate woman in the abdomen. Since this affair Mrs. Sachs has been confined to her bed and has passed from one hysterical fit to another. Her mother and several lady friends have been with her since then, endeavoring to quiet the unfortunate lady. At the time of the assault (Saturday) officers on the beat entered the house, alarmed at Mrs. Sachs' shrieks, but, owing to a desire of all interested to keep the matter quiet, no arrests were made, nor was there any publicity given to the affair.

Thomas Shannon, the wife's father, was telegraphed for on Saturday, and is expected to arrive here next Monday, when it is believed that an adjudication of the troubles of the unhappy family will be had. While it is known that Sachs has been insanely jealous of his wife, it is the belief of friends familiar with the facts that none of the scandalous statements circulated by enemies possess a particle of truth. Both actors in this domestic broil are young, the husband being about 27 and the wife about 25. The husband is one of two sons only, and is prospective heir to a great fortune. The father and mother reside in this city in a palatial residence. Both are overwhelmed with grief at the unfortunate affair, and have tried every means to keep the matter from the public.

Mary Stuart's Pass Key.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

The loan collection of ancient iron work brought together by Messrs. Gardner contains specimens of the smith's art from the fifteenth century downward, and some of them possess an almost historic interest. There are brackets and other pieces produced under the influence of Inigo Jones and Christopher Wren, removed from city churches now destroyed; chests and caskets of all sorts and sizes, among them a very fine chest of 1550, with a concealed lock, the sight of which makes one wonder that no effort is ever made to give an artistic character to the much safer but assuredly less beautiful safes of the present day. The gem of the collection is the pass key of Mary Stuart, a delicate piece of pierced metal work with interwoven monogram. Whether it belonged to her or not, it is certainly an exquisite specimen of Henry II. workmanship, and experts say it must have taken a man two years to make it.

THE WHITTY TROUBLE.

The Father-in-Law Relents and the Pressing Creditor is Fixed.

The complications into which Michael Whitty, the grain inspector, had fallen, and which caused him to be watched so closely by Private Detective Bennett, were straightened out late Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Pomarede, his mother-in-law, and her daughter at last prevailed upon Mr. Pomarede and an arrangement was made by which Mr. Ferriss got his money, and the imminent danger of arrest was avoided. Mr. Whitty's statement of the affair, which he mysteriously refused to make to a POST-DISPATCH reporter on Saturday, although asked for it several times, is as follows: Before he negotiated the loan with Ferriss & Weed, he had given to a man named McMillan, of the firm of McMillan & Co., about $6,000, to lift the incumbrance on the Hickory street property. Whitty thought this had been done, and filed the abstract accordingly, and he states that he was as much astonished as anybody when he found that the prior mortgage had never been paid. McMillan, he states, has disappeared, taking with him the $6,000, and thus caused all the trouble. Ferriss & Weed grew anxious right away and had Whitty so closely watched and so closely pushed that the only question left to him was to settle right away or go to jail. Mr. Pomarede held out very persistently, notwithstanding a scene at the house, when Ferriss and all the members of the family were present, and when Mrs. Whitty fainted during an appeal to her father to save her husband. Mrs. Pomarede, however, at last succeeded in bringing the distressing set of circumstances to a close, and Whitty is happy again. In his answer Mr. Whitty calls the account in Saturday's POST-DISPATCH "sensational," but not a single word or detail of it was untrue in any sense. The great efforts made by Mr. Whitty to secure its suppression is the best proof of its truthfulness.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOL LIBRARY.

Librarian Spamer Answers "Mechanic" as to the Recent Additions to the Library.

A card was printed in Saturday's POST-DISPATCH signed "Mechanic," which criticised very severely the late additions to the Public School Library. Mr. Spamer, the librarian, was asked to-day what the general character of the additions to the library was. He said: "As a matter of fact, the library has received more scientific books during the last eight months than any previous time in its history. The book lists which appear in the daily papers are no real criterion of the quality or quantity of books received, for in the majority of cases the lists we furnish have been cut down for want of space."

"Upon what principle do you buy books?"

"The desire of the management is to bring about a systematic increase of books in all the departments, and the greatest care is exercised against adding to one class at the expense of another. The cost of scientific books is greater than that of any other kind. The extensive addition to the collection in this line attests the fact that the management is not deterred from purchasing on the score of cost. If 'Mechanic' is a member of the Library he will find ample opportunity to verify what I say. If not he should become one and assist the management, as is the privilege and duty of every member, in building up the library and increasing its usefulness in a community which lately has shown a greater interest in it than heretofore."

FOUND IN HIS SHOE.

A Counterfeiter Provided With Material to Make a Skeleton Key.

When Hall, the nickel counterfeiter, who was arrested by Detectives Lawler and Desmond, was returned from the United States Court last Saturday, a piece of copper wire was found in his shoe. It is [illegible]stomary to search a prisoner every time h[illegible] [illegible]en from or returned to jail, but the firs[illegible] [illegible] only scrutinizing search made. At [illegible] the Deputy United States Mars[illegible] [illegible]pped, and the wire which wo[illegible] [illegible]se of a skeleton key was[illegible] [illegible] He was probably [illegible] wire by a co[illegible]rate while on his w[illegible] United St[illegible] [illegible]urt.

The Police Court.

[illegible]e First District Police Court to-day [illegible]en cases which have been made against [illegible] Kiely from time to time for keeping an un[illegible]nsed dramshop were dismissed by City Attorney Erskine, as a license was granted Kelly on Saturday by the Board of Police Commissioners.

Eleven cases against owners of unlicensed vehicles were dismissed. In the trial of this class of cases in many instances much actual injustice has been done the owners of wagons and buggies. A person may have his license paid for and everything in conformity with the ordinance, except displaying the badge on the horse or wagon. This, in nearly every case, is done either innocently or in ignorance of the requirements of the ordinance. In some cases a different harness has been used and the license is fastened to the one undergoing repair or left in the stable. It is all the same. The $3 costs are assessed, besides another 50 cents for making a bond for appearance, to say nothing of the time lost by an expressman from his work.

Jay Davis was assessed $25 for knocking a man down.

Wm. Cramer, for willfully disturbing the peace of Mary Davis, was fined $50 and costs.

George M. Turner was fined $20 and costs for an aggravated case of assault and battery.

Court of Criminal Correction.

In the Court of Criminal Correction to-day the case against Henry Simms, charged with the murder of John Snyder, was continued until August 7.

The cases for murder in the second degree against Jack Donahue and Peter Devanney, the Work-house guard who killed a prisoner by beating him with a gun, will probably be heard to-day.

WANTS in the POST-DISPATCH cost ten cents.

At the Morgue.

The remains of Mollie Murphy, the disreputable woman who committed suicide at the northeast corner of Walnut and Seventh streets yesterday, and who died last night at 8:30 in the City Hospital, were brought to the Morgue and deposited on the slab. An inquest will be held on the remains to-day.

Receipts were very heavy of wheat to-day and large of oats. The farmers seem to be very willing to sell at present price.—The stock of wheat in this market is now over a million bushels, having increased 100,000 bu. since last Saturday, notwithstanding 91,000 bu. was taken out from elevators.—New Orleans telegraphs that forward steamers are hard to obtain. The British government are reported as engaging tonnage freely. This is, of course, for the purpose of having plenty of transportation for troops and supplies to Egypt, and this fact will undoubtedly hold ocean rates stiff and even advance them.—Last week the bulls on corn were claiming that the corn crop was being ruined for want of rain, and that if the drouth kept up much longer the crop would be a total failure. Since Friday heavy rains have fallen in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas and in fact about everywhere where it was needed. The next complaint will be that the crop was drowned out.—726 cars wheat received in Toledo to-day. The crops move freely.—Phil. Armour is the possessor of great nerve. He banged No. 2 spring wheat for July up to $1 35. in Chicago to-day.—Amadee Cole has returned from a trip to the sea shore, where he took on a good tan and a new lease of life.

CATTLE—The market was not brash by any means, and it may be truly said dullness prevailed to a painful extent. Offerings large, there being on sale over 200 car loads at the opening of the market, and over two-thirds of which consisted of grass Texans and Indians of common to good quality. As the reports from all the Eastern and interior stock centers were very discouraging, denoting overflowing pens and prices demoralized, as may be imagined this placed an embargo on the operation of buyers in our market. Native shipping steers in light supply and slow. Good ones would sell at quotations. Common and half-fat natives and Southwest stock dull. Transfers this forenoon altogether to local butchers and the Canning Company and were sold at slight declines, as will be seen by the sales published below. A clearance will not be effected to-day, even at declines. Milch cows with calves dull.

A Pardon—But Not For Pate.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, MO., July 31.—Governor Crittenden to-day issued a pardon to Gilbert Watson, who was sentenced under the name of Jas. W. Williams, at the August term, 1880, of the Clay County Circuit Court, to ten years' imprisonment in the Penitentiary for burglary. The pardon is granted on the recommendation of George D. Dunn, Judge of the Clay County Circuit Court; W. H. Woodson, Prosecuting Attorney at the time; James M. Sandusky, present Prosecuting Attorney and Jas. R. Timberlake, Sheriff, who recommend his pardon upon the ground that Williams, sentence to the penitentiary was illegal because at the time he was under 18 years of age and he would not have been so sentenced if it had been known to the court at that time that he was under 18 years of age.

She complains of his attention to an old love.

Mary Campbell wishes to be divorced from Benjamin F. Campbell. They were married in June, 1879, and six weeks later the husband deserted and abandoned the bride. She alleges that there was no cause for this, and asks for restoration of her maiden name, Bartlett.

Sarah L. Elwood wants to be freed from the bonds of matrimony contracted with Charles G. Elwood. The lady states that her husband neglected to provide for her, and, after a short matrimonial experience, she was forced to go home to her father for support.

WALTON, THE PLUNGER.

The Opinion Local Sports Have of Him—His Gains.

Walton, "the plunger," has at last got into trouble, and the local betting men are in high glee over the matter. A prominent citizen, who often invests in pool-tickets, said this morning to a POST-DISPATCH reporter:

"I am very glad they have caught up with him. I hope they will run him off every track in the east. I think evidence enough can be secured against him to do it."

"What complaint have you against him?"

"Well, he has knocked me out of at least $1,500 within the last month. At least, he is blamed for it on all sides. I am pretty sure that his large payments to jockeys and stable men at Sheepshead Bay and other places have been such that he could always name the winner. In the Manhattan race last week I stood to win $700, but Walton was on the other side, and, as usual, my horse did not get there, although his defeat was unaccountable."

"The book-makers will be glad to get him out of the way."

"Yes, all betting men will. He had added another element of uncertainty to the already uncertain shiftings of the race track. Everybody knows that he has had his finger in a great many races won and lost this season. Mind, I don't say that he has done anything crooked, but he practically owns the Eastern jockeys, and he has had the whole matter in his own hands. Why, he always knows more about the outcome of a race than all the owners of the horses combined."

Other men who followed pool buying on a small scale, stated that everybody was afraid of Walton here, and that all lost money by him.

Walton got into a quarrel with Jas. E. Kelly, on the Monmouth Park Race Course on Friday, and the latter accused "the plunger" of using money to corrupt riders and others so that he could win his bets. Mr. Kelly said, "Walton is using money to corrupt owners, trainers and riders. He had horses pulled at Sheepshead Bay. He has asked me five different times to stiffen Eunice, Milan and other horses of mine."

The matter will be investigated by the executive committee of the association. One of the Lorillards stated the association knew that this matter was going on for some time and was glad an investigation had been ordered. Walton is the most famous better in the world. At the opening of the present season, his total gains, acquired on the turf, were known to be over a million dollars. His successes at Sheepshead Bay and Monmouth Park this spring and summer have largely increased this sum. He won $65,000 at Saratoga in three weeks last summer, and followed it up with $25,000 gains at Long Branch, immediately after. Then he went to England and brought back £90,000 of British money. His successes, however obtained, have driven book-makers wild. He never bets except in the books.

Last summer a trap was set for him. It was arranged that a horse that was known to be a sure winner should be pulled, and that Walton should not know it. The rider was fixed and all was ready. Walton continued to back the horse heavily and the bookmakers were in ecstacies and winked at each other as he turned his back. But he knew all about the trick. A day before the race he went to the fixed jockey and told him he could have $2,500 if he would let the horse win. The little "nig" never heard of so much money, and was anxious to have it, but he said the owner of the horse would beat him to death if he won the race. "Well," said Walton, I'll do the same if you lose, and I'll give you the money if you win." It only remains to say that the horse won, and that the bookmakers were again routed.

FROM the present indications the season of 1882 will be characterized by a liberal supply of rain, an abundant crop and a good boating stage of water in the Mississippi. With these blessings we could pull through in a pinch if the President took it upon himself to veto the river and harbor bill.

THE War Eagle came in from St. Paul and returns to-morrow with a cabin full of people for the Minnesota watering-places. A large number of rooms were taken last week by parties who make the round trip to St. Paul and return. As the water is in good stage and the weather delightfully cool, the excursion must prove enjoyable.

THE river at noon to-day marked 17 3 10 feet by the gauge, a fall of 1-10 of a foot in 24 hours. There is about 9 feet water out to Cairo, a fair stage in the Illinois and Upper Mississippi, but the Missouri is getting troublesome, and boats are suffering some detention for lack of sufficient water. Business is fair for the time of year, and will improve from this on.

THE oldest American vessel now in service is the barque Amethyst, which was built in Boston of seasoned live oak in 1822, and is consequently sixty years old. She is 356 tons register, which was a large craft sixty years ago, and was first employed between Boston and Liverpool, then as a whaler, and finally as a trader in the Pacific. She is now at San Francisco, and in a good state of preservation.

THE Cincinnati Commercial of yesterday says: The erection of a Marine Hospital building in this city may now be looked upon as a fixed fact. Senators Pendleton and Sherman gave the House bill upon that subject special attention when it reached the Senate, and yesterday Hon. S. F. Covington received a note from Senator Pendleton saying that the Senate Committee had acted favorably upon the measure. This means a favorable report and favorable action of the Senate, and the erection of a hospital where boatmen can be properly cared for and humanely treated, as men fairly entitled to such treatment, because they provide for it by the payment of a tax, instead of being treated as paupers or sent away to another city.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

In spite of inclement weather there was an appreciative audience at Uhrig's Cave last evening and a cordial reception marked the presentation f[illegible] first time here of Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera "The Sorcerer, or Everybody in Love." The roles were distributed as follows: Sir Marmaduke Poindextre, J. W. Raymond; Alexis of the Grenadiers, his son, Chas. F. Lang; Dr. Daly, Vicar of Ploverleigh, W. H. Fitzgerald; John Wellington Wells, of J. Wells & Co.'s Family Sorcerers, Geo. W. Denham; Lady Sangazure, Miss Genevieve Reynolds; Aline, her daughter, Miss Marie Bockell; Mrs. Partlet, Miss Mamie Taylor; Constance, the pew-opener's daughter, Miss Blanche Chapman. The work is in two acts and the music is somewhat of the oratorio order. It cannot fail to become popular and may be reckoned among one of the most pleasing of Gilbert and Sullivan's productions in comic opera. In the hands of Ford's company the initial presentation was satisfactory. Geo. W. Denham made a decided hit in the role of the Sorcerer, and Misses Blanche Chapman, Genevieve Reynolds and Marie Bockell well sustained their excellent reputations in the respective parts named above. As Alexis the Grenadier, Mr. Lang, was not prepared last night. He knew little of his lines. The chorus did well, and no exception could be taken to the orchestra. "The Sorcerer" will be the attraction at the Cave for the week, and everybody should see this work of Gilbert and Sullivan.

Miss Fay Templeton, that very bright and talented little singer, is spending her summer vacation quietly with her parents at their pretty country home on the Hudson near New York. She is now studying the role of Patience, and her appearance in that part the coming season will be looked forward to with much interest by her many admirers. She will appear here at the People's Theater early in the winter.

THE FALL TRADE.

Merchants Most Enthusiastic Over the Fine Outlook.

Talk With Representative Men—Business Already Brisk.

The prospects for the fall trade were never more encouraging. The crop reports from every section are so good and the chances that no setback can now occur are so promising that the merchants are full of hope and talk in a way that they have not for many years. The outlook is that the country will be very rich this season. Most of the small grain is already secure. The rains of Saturday night and yesterday are proving to be rather general and are the only thing wanted to give the all trade a general and triumphant boom. Accordingly the merchants are most enthusiastic. They say they have good reason to be so. Even this early, when it would be supposed to be too soon to look for general indications of a prosperous fall, the prospects are so good that they leave no room for doubt. The orders all show that the country demand is more general and more brisk for all kinds of goods than for many seasons. In fact some of the gentlemen spoken with, as will be seen below, go so far as to say that this will assuredly be the best season they have ever had. The hotels all report that the drummers are out on the roads, having packed their satchels much earlier than usual in answer to the springing demand. The prosperity promises to be general, and unless some untoward accident should happen, like the frosts which Vennor sets down as likely to occur in August, this fall will be marked in business circles with a red letter.

MR. R. M. SCRUGGS

was found at his place of busines, eagerly pouring over the crop reports as published this morning. In answer to a question he said: "Yes, the outlook is very good. I am more than satisfied with it. We shall have a great fall season, I am sure."

"Better than last one?" asked the reporter.

"Oh, there is no doubt about that," said Mr. Scruggs. "The indications all show that. Of course you will understand that many of the orders we are filling now were made about April 1, when it was impossible to tell anything about the possibilities. But they will be largely increased. In fact, I am of the opinion that this will be the best season we have ever had."

"And it is all due to the crops?"

"Yes; the country is rich and that is the explanation. Our Mr. Vandervoort is at present in Europe. He writes me to-day that he will be home shortly and that the outlook from his side is very favorable indeed."

"You think there is nothing in the way of a business boom?"

"Nothing that I can see at all. You know, all the small grain in the territory tributary to St. Louis and Missouri is already safe beyond a boubt. It is only the corn that is still in conjecture, and that is now so big, according to all reports, that it may be put down as safe. Only the products of the northern belt of country need be looked to with any apprehension, and there does not seem to be a single reason why they should not all be good. You can say that so far as I can see in my business the outlook never was better."

MR. WM. A. HARGADINE,

of Crow, Hargadine & Co. was seen at his place of business. He was head over ears in orders and had barely time to tell how enthusiastic he was about the prospects.

"They are good," he said, "very good."

"Better than last year?"

"Yes, decidedly so. There will be a good, healthy trade, which will give us all we can do to handle it, I think."

"Was last year a good one?"

"Well, I'll never grumble if all years are as good as last. But the coming one will be much better. You can be sure of that. All the indications are that way. The signs cannot fail."

MR. R. H. STOCKTON,

secretary of the Simmons Hardware Company, was seen, Mr. Simmons being absent from the city.

"What is the fall outlook?" Mr. Stockton was asked.

"Good," was the answer. "We have, even now, all we can attend to."

"Are the prospects in the direction of an increase?"

"Yes, decidedly. Our orders this morning are from all parts of the country, and they show a general and an increased demand for all kinds of goods in our line. All the reports from the country are most favorable."

"The indications are better than next year?"

"Yes; much. Our fall orders keep right up. The crop is the largest yet raised, and there is no doubt why we should not have a big boom. As I can see, the increase in fall trade will be very large, and will reach each and every branch of business."

MR. ANDREW SPROULE,

of Samuel C. Davis & Co., was met, and he reiterated the general expression: "The outlook is very good. No doubt it will be much better than usual."

"Better than last season?"

"Yes. At this time last year the outlook was very gloomy, while now it is just the opposite. The crops are good and the chances are very rosy."

MR. D. CRAWFORD

was most enthusiastic.

"Yes," said he, "it will be a great season. Just look at these crowds in here," and he walked through the store, elbowing his way through a throng that nearly blocked the passages. "You never saw anything like this so early in the season, did you? No, neither have I. I tell you, we are going to have great times, this fall."

"AND THE COUNTRY ORDERS?"

"Booming, sir, booming. We have every man, woman and child here, from cash boy up, in all departments, as hard at work as they could be. We have hired large additional help. The outlook is glorious."

MR. JOSEPH FRANKLIN

of Barr's, is absent from the city, but at that establishment the same favorable reports were given as at other places. Inquiries among other merchants and upon 'Change showed that the general sentiment was that the prospects from the fall trade were never better at this season of the year.

While some boys were playing about the quarry on Twentieth and University streets this morning they discovered the body of a drowned man in the water at the bottom of the quarry. The body is badly decomposed and appears as though it might have been in the water a week. The body is dressed in a dark suit of clothes, has chin whiskers and is about 45 years old. It is supposed to be John Winke, a German, who has been missing more than a week.

SHORT WEIGHTS IN GRAIN

A Shipper to St. Louis States His Case and Demands a Reform.

Mr. Jas. P. Brennan, a prominent citizen and large dealer in grain at Pacific, Mo., was on the floor of the Exchange, and hunted up a POST-DISPATCH reporter in order to express his satisfaction with the article that appeared in last Friday's paper on short weights in grain at St. Louis elevators. "That article," said Mr. Brennan, "was absolutely correct in every particular." He then went on to give instances wherein he had lost heavily, through the weights of grain falling off that had been shipped by him to this market, and also where grain had been sent to him from St. Louis. He lost at both ends. Last winter he ordered corn from his commission merchants, Redmond Cleary & Co., who sent him in all about 40,000 bushels to Pacific. The loss in weight on this corn runs from 5 to 22 bushels to the car. Since new wheat commenced to move he has been shipping some here and found that St. Louis elevators' weights fell over largely from his. On one car sent to Central Elevator there was a difference of 17 bushels against him. Mr. Brennan claims that the scales upon which his grain is weighed are located at Washington, Mo., from which point he does most of his shipping, and these scales are correct and kept in the best order. Messrs. Schwaymann & Co., large millers, and Mr. Thias, who ships grain to John Wahl & Co., weigh their grain on this same scale, and both say they always find a loss in grain shipped to St. Louis. Their complaints are constant, and Mr. Brennan thinks St. Louis merchants ought to do something to stop them.

POOR POLICY-HOLDERS.

The Columbia Receiver's Suit Against the Life Association Dismissed.

Judge Thayer Reviews the Transfer Contract and Sustains It.

Judge Thayer to-day rendered a decision in the case of the Columbia Life Insurance Company's receiver against the State Superintendent, in charge of the estate of the Life Association. It furnishes another chapter in the history of the life insurance litigation following the collapse of the great local companies during the past ten years. After the Life Association had got control of the majority of the stock of the Columbia Insurance Company, and had its own directors acting at the Columbia board, the scheme was devised to purchase the outstanding Columbia policies by substituting policies of the Life Association. About 3,000 policies were arranged in that way. The two directories, Columbia and Life Association, consisting of the same persons, then fixed up the agreement of transfer of the Columbia assets, aggregating $676,000, to the Life Association, and buying up the Life Association policies. The Columbia receiver brought suit to set aside the contract on the ground of fraud, and alleging that it was made for the purpose of hindering, delaying and defrauding the creditors. The court to-day dismisses the case, giving its reasons in the opinion published below. The result will be to still further diminish the dividend of the Columbia policy-holders. Judge Thayer says: "The proof does not support the charge that the transfers of property complained of were made with intent either to hinder, delay or defraud the creditors of the Columbia Life Insurance Company. The purpose which the two contracting corporations had in view was to place the policy risks of the Columbia Life Insurance Company, with the consent of the policy-holders, with the Life Association, the former company transferring to the latter sufficient property, real and personal, to cover the reserve value of the risks thus transferred. There was no artifice used to cover up the property of the Columbia Life or place it beyond the reach of creditors. It does not even appear that the Life Association made or contemplated making any profit out of the transaction. On the contrary it is fairly inferable from the testimony that the property transferred was not commensurate with the obligations assumed. Viewed in the light most favorable for the plaintiff, the transaction simply amounted to a preference of one class of policy claimants over another. The intent necessary to vitiate the transfers under the statute respecting fraudulent conveyances has not been proven, and the case fails in so far as it is predicated on that ground. It is also my opinion that the petition fails to state two separate and independent grounds of recovery in proper form. It states a cause of action under the statute respecting fraudulent conveyances, and that is all in my judgment. But waving this objection, and conceding that an amendment of the pleadings might now be made, curing any defect in the form of stating the case, still I am prepared to go further and hold that the facts will not justify a recovery on the ground designated in the first cause of action. The fact that both corporations were managed by the same board of directors at the time that the transfers took place did not render the transfer null and void. If the fact that the two boards were identical has any effect upon the legality of the transaction had between the two corporations while they were so managed, it would in my estimation have no other or greater effect than to render such transactions voidable, and if the transfers of property are to be assailed on the ground that they are voidably merely, no court would think of disturbing them unless it was feasible to restore both parties substantially to their former position. In this case the plaintiff not only fails to proffer a restoration of what it has received, but it is obvious to the court that a rescission of the transfers on anything like equitable principles is impossible. The consideration paid by the association for the transfer of assets was the assumption of 3,000 policies, involving risks aggregating several million dollars, the net reserves whereon amounted to about $700,000. Those risks were canceled as obligations of the Columbia with the concurrence of the assured policy-holders, and new contracts assuming the risks were issued by the association. It continued to carry and protect these risks so long as its corporate existence continued, that is, from February, 1877, until October, 1879. The claims thereon for the value of the reserves are now claims against its assets and not against the Columbia. The policy-holders of the Columbia who assented to the arrangement and were transferred to the association are not even before the court as parties to the present case. I think the evidence very clearly shows that it is beyond the plaintiff's power to do what a court of equity would unquestionably require to be done as a condition precedent to a rescission of the transfers, even if it were conceded that the arrangement as originally entered into was voidable at the election of the plaintiff, as is contended by counsel. The petition will accordingly be dismissed."

Small Travel.

To-day travel was exceedingly light at the Union Depot. The trains were lightly loaded both arriving and departing. The number of registrations at the hotels was not half as large as it was during the past week. The arrivals at the beginning and end of the week are always smaller than on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, but to-day they were unusually small.

SPORTING.

The Standing of the Teams in the League and the Association—Notes.

The exhibition game between the Cincinnati and St. Louis clubs, at Sportmens' Park yesterday, had a considerable crowd notwithstanding the wretched weather. The ground was in horrible condition, yet the Cincinnatis played an excellent game, having no error charged to them and defeating the home club by a score of 5 to 1. The Browns opened with a single in the first, earned by Jack and Billy Gleason, but that was all they could do, never crossing the home plate again. Doyle, the Browns new pitcher, hardly had a fair trial, as he was badly supported. Base-hits, Cincinnati, 12; St. Louis 7. The Browns had seven errors, three of which belonged to Sullivan the catcher. The Cincinnati left for home last night, where the Browns joins them to-night, to play during the rest of the week.

The St. Louis Reds were defeated by the Watch Factory nine at Springfield, Ill., yesterday by a score of 6 to 4.

The game at Cincinnati Saturday, between the St. Louis and Cincinnati clubs, resulted in the defeat of St. Louis by a score of 5 to 3.

At Providence, Saturday—Troy, 12; Providence, 6.

At Boston—Boston, 5; Worcester, 1.

At Buffalo—Cleveland, 11; Buffalo, 3.

At Detroit—Chicago, 17; Detroit, 1.

At New York—Metropolitans, 7; Philadelphia, 2.

In the League Chicago and Providence are tied, with 32 games won, Detroit has won 30, Boston 27, Cleveland 25, Troy 24.

In the American Association Cincinnati has won 30 games, Athletics 27, St. Louis 24, Eclipse 22, Allegheney 19, Baltimore 9.

RACING.

At Monmouth Park Saturday the first race, one mile, was won by Yorkshire, Corsair second. Time, 1:44. In the three-fourth-mile, Queen first, Marc Antony second, Fan Glove third. Time, 1:18¾. In the one mile, Wyoming first, Macbeth second. Time 1:45¾. In the 1⅛ miles, Gerofla first, Duplex second, Ella third. Time, 1:59½. In the 1⅝ miles, Priam won, Fair Count second, Mary Anderson third. Time, 2:58. In the 1¼ miles for gentlemen riders, Sir Hugh first, Duke of Kent second. Time, 1:55. Ike Bonham won the steeplechase over the full course.

PUGILISM AND WRESTLING.

H. McHugh, of Wasau, Wis., has challenged Prof. John Donaldson, the boxer, to fight him for $500 a side.

Andy Sweeney, of Kansas City, and John Hanley, of Denver, have entered into an arrangement to fight for $500 a side on the 1st of September, within a hundred miles of Kansas City.

John McMahon, champion collar and elbow wrestler of the world, and John O'Brien have arranged a match at Milwaukee. O'Brien says he is also willing to fight Sullivan in the ring for the championship of the world.

NOTES.

The St. Louis and Cincinnati clubs play to-morrow at Cincinnati—their second schedule game.

Cincinnati made a mistake in refusing to allow yesterday's game to go on record as a championship contest. They are "out" one victory in consequence.

Three errors of a more than ordinarily discouraging nature, gave the Cincinnatis their score yesterday. Had the easy chances been accepted Doyle would have shut them out.

Doyle made his standing solid in the St. Louis yesterday. He is a cool, collected and gentlemanly little pitcher, with wonderful powers of tactic and delivery. He is the right man in the right place.

Ladies' Day has been a remarkable success elsewhere, and will be so in St. Louis. On Thursday, August 10, all the reserved seats at Sportsman's Park will be thrown open for the accommodation of ladies, and no charge of admission will be made. The St. Louis and Cincinnati play on that day.

A line of substantial seats will be erected this week at Sportsman's Park, to extend to the left field fence, being a matter of absolute necessity. The demand for reserved seats has been so great that the directors have set aside a large portion of covered seats for the purpose. The new seats will relieve all pressure on ordinary occasions.

Fred Millet, the artist, has just completed an eight-foot oil painting of Lawrence Barrett as Cassius.

"Luck" is the name of Mr. Henry Pettitt's new drama which will be produced at the Boston Theater next season.

Miss Emma Stickney, the well-known equestrienne, is seriously and perhaps fatally ill at Detroit, Mich.

A son of the veteran actor C. W. Couldock is gallery doorkeeper at Baldwin's Theater, San Francisco.

William Davidge has written a comedy in four acts, and is negotiating with J. M. Hill for its production.

George Jessup has written a play called "Ricochette," which has been bought by Miss Bessie Darling.

Joseph Wheelock will produce his new play, "Captain Wardour" ("The Frozen Deep"), in Detroit in September.

Miss Josie Richmond, of the Richmond sisters, was reported dangerously ill in Kœnigsburg, Prussia, on June 26.

Mr. Lawrence Barrett will bring out his new tragedy, "Monmouth," during his engagement at the Park Theater in October.

Mr. Henry E. Dixey has signed with Manager Stetson for twenty-five weeks, to play the leading comedy part in "The Romany Rye."

Jos. Levy, for ten years associated with C. J. Whitney, of the Grand Opera house, Detroit, has joined Lawrence Barrett for next year.

Charles Stevenson, who is in London, has engaged Frank Rogers to rewrite for him "The Lyons Mail," placing the scene in Colorado.

Maud Granger, now at Hartford, has recovered her health, her good looks and the 15 pounds weight she lost in her recent severe illness.

Edgar Fawcett is in negotiation with Kate Claxton for the production of a new comedy written by himself and entitled "Ocean View."

Mrs. Octavia Allen will not be a member of Mr. Tom Keene's company next season, she having been engaged as leading lady of the Salvini combination.

Miss Kate Claxton was upset from a boat near Patchouge, L. I., last week, and narrowly escaped drowning. Now she hopes to hear no more fire stories.

Miss Jennie De Lacy, the original "White Fawn" at Niblo's, and late of the Florence company, was married to John F. James in New York on Tuesday last.

Mr. T. M. Hunter has been re-engaged as a member of Mr. Harry Meredith's "Ranch No. 10" combination. He is summering in his cottage at Great Head, Winthrop.

Miss Mary Anderson has sold her winter residence at 412 Classon avenue, Brooklyn, for $7,600. She still owns two houses in New York and a summer residence at Long Branch.

John Howson has abandoned his idea of starring in Clay Greene's "Straws" next season. He says he is "not playing for fame now," but for a pecuniary consideration.

Mr. and Mrs. Nat. Goodwin will leave their cottage at Ocean Spray for Long Branch, where they will reside until "The Black Flag" is brought out at the Union Square Theater, August 21.

Miss Ada Gray is visiting friends and relatives in Boston. She goes to her summer residence at Long Branch next week. Her season will begin August 21, at the Windsor Theater, New York.

A. M. Palmer is said by the Dramatic Times to have offered Charles Coghlan $400 a week to take the position of leading man in the Union Square Theater, but Mr. Coghlan refused to come for less than $550.

Mr. Boucicault's new play, "The Boyne Water," will, it is probable, be produced for the first time at the Boston Museum next winter. He has canceled all dates looking to its production in England.

The Kendals are said to have declined the offer of an American engagement made them by Mr. Abbey, simply because they are doing too well in England to cross the water just now, even for a large certainty.

Mr. Denman Thompson has offered Mr. J. B. Mason $100 a week to play the part in "Joshua Whitcomb" formerly enacted by Mr. Jepson, but Mr. Masons engagement at the Museum will keep him in Boston next season.

Manager Stetson says the report that he has engaged Barry Sullivan for an American tour next season is entirely without foundation. He has no knowledge of the tragedian's coming to this country, and doesn't believe he will.

Mr. S. S. Block, the well-known reader and teacher of elocution, will make his first appearance as a member of the Madison Square Company (with which he has been engaged for two years) as Lord Travers in "Hazel Kirke."

Mr. Sol Smith Russell begins his next traveling season with "Edgewood Folks," under the Messrs. Berger's management, at Albion, Mich., on the 31st inst. He has engaged Mrs. Clarence Bennett (Henrietta Berger) to play Annie Dilloway.

E. S. Connor, the veteran actor, who has had in his possession for nearly forty years the dagger used by the great Sarah Siddons in her performance of Juliet, on Monday last presented it and an autograph of Mrs. Siddons to Miss Mary Anderson.

Manager Eugene Tompkins tried to secure the Comedie Francaise for an American tour, it is said, but found that they wanted 3,000,000 f. ($600,000) for a four months' engagement, which he concluded was a little "steep" and cut short his negotiations.

"American-Born," David Belasco's "new" play recently and successfully produced in San Francisco, proves to be an English melodrama entitled "British-Born," slightly worked over. Mr. Belasco, it is said, is to be stage manager of the Madison Square Theater next season.

Mr. Robert Mautell, the English actor recently engaged by Mr. Stetson, has been released by the latter at the request of Messrs. Brooks & Dickson, and will play Sir Clement Huntingford in "The World" traveling company next season. He will arrive in this country about September 1.

Mr. Perkins D. Fisher will not remain with the Madison Square Company next season, having been engaged to play the Judge in "Kit" with Mr. Chanfrau, beginning September 4. Mr. Fisher has played Pittacus Green in "Hazel Kirke" for ten months, and naturally feels a little tired of it.

It is said that the first two performances of "Parsifal" at Bayreuth are so exclusively reserved for "patrons," that the arrangements will shut out nearly the whole of the musical critics of the English press. Among those thus excluded are the critics of the Daily Telegraph, Standard, Daily News and Morning Post.

Australian advices to June 15: "The Professor" was a success at Sydney; Louise Pomeroy way playing "Led Estray" and "Leah" at Melbourne; Jennie Lee had made a hit in "The Grasshopper" (La Cigale); the Wilsons had leased the Theatre Royal to produce "Patience" and "The Mascot," with Emelie Melville as prima donna.

"An American King," the new play by Mr. C. T. Dazey, which was recently so successfully produced in Chicago, and in which Mr. James O'Neill, who has purchased it, proposes to star next season, is said to have been first brought out under the title of "Gold Mad" at the Lyceum (now Fourteenth Street) Theater, New York, about four years ago.

The London Figaro is authority for the statement that Mme. Minnie Hauk contemplates accepting an offer made by a syndicate of American capitalists to be the leading artist of an opera season in this country next winter, which is to include "Carmen," "Meistersinger," "Le Roi l'a Dit," "Merry Wives," "Taming of the Shrew," and other operas.

The following are the principal members of Lawrence Barrett's company for the coming season: Messrs. Louis James, Otis Skinner, Ben G. Rogers, F. C. Mosley, Chas. Plunkett, Fred P. Barton, Percy Winter (Willie Winter's son), Erroll Dunbar, Chas. Rolie, Homer Cope, A. T. Riddle, Garrie Davidson and the Misses Marie Wainright, Addie Plunkett and Minnie Monk.

In 1869, Mme. Methua-Scheller, the German tragedienne, traveling in Colorado with her husband, bought 40 acres of land for 300. Soon after they returned to New York, and since then nobody knows what disposal they made of the property. Both are dead, and, it is believed, without heirs or relations in this country. The land is now included in the limits of the city of Denver, and is of great value.

Mme. Adelina Patti was recently, for the first time since she parted from the Marquis de Caux, summoned to appear at a court concert at Buckingham Palace. More than that, she took Nicolini with her, and together they sang the duo, "Del terreno ambir fallace," from Lenepuen's new opera, "Velleda." The audience received the number with as much enthusiasm as is ever shown in such an assembly. The sensation of the evening was the rendering of a chorus, with solo, by Mmes. Pauline Lucca and Trebelli, Messrs. Maas and De Reszke, called "L'Invocazione Ell' Armonia," written by the late Prince Consort.

"THE BEST

Laid schemes o'mice and men gang aft aglee," said Burns, and all know the truth (in most instances) of the utterance. However, we were RIGHT (as usual) when we had made up a LARGE LINE of those really elegant and gloriously cool suits, now known far and wide as HUMPHREY'S HOMESPUN FLAX SUITS. We ascertained that the material was durable and would not shrink in washing. We had them made well and trimmed nicely. And in addition to our regular sizes, we cut a FAT size and a SLIM size, making Three Distinct Shapes to each inch breast measure. The fat sizes are low in back of neck, short skirt, short sleeve and large in the abdomen. Our SLIMS are long sleeve, long back and high in the neck. No wonder, then, that the most fastidious admired the FIT and APPEARANCE of these suits? No wonder, either, that our sales of them have been so marvelous.

We will place the last hundred of these tempting suits on our tables this morning. Gentlemen, this is your last chance. Please call or send in your orders. Our stock contains everything needed in the way of Thin and Medium-Weight Clothing.
